CONFLICT OF RACES IN THE PACIFIC

GREAT JAPANESE-AMERICAN CLASH FORESHADOWED

1. SIGNS OF THE GATHER- ING STORM

(SPECIAL TO THE "DAILY PRESS")

(BY UPTON CLOSE)

Shanghai, July 16.

Here in the midst of the Pacific stage, one is overwhelmed by the conviction that the startling drama of races and nations, factories, raw materials and navies, has only just begun.

When the white man went out with his organization and science and made himself master of the world, he had to teach the orientals his secrets in order to make them remunerative to him. To-day Japan, with the greatest economic empire in the world at her feet, raises the bid and beats him at his own game. Now Japan must organize and teach China in order to make China "pay." Fifty years from now China, preserved through everything by cultural cohesion such as is known among no other people, having "learned how," will push Japan back into second place.

Long before that, unless logical developments are curbed by some cataclysm, the white nations which began industry and world trade will be pushed back into their own boundaries, to sustain themselves there in whatever standard of living their own resources and organizing ability may provide.

THE CONFLICT BEGINS

The curtain-raiser on this great world drama, being played to the west of the United States—the direction in which the "course of Empire" takes its way—was Japan's military impetuosity in Manchuria and Shanghai and the American Government's and League of Nations' censure. But the phase of squabble over broken treaties and outraged policies is well passed. There will be no interference now by the United States or European Powers except on the impelling motive of national interest. With Japan holding the great coal mines (opened up under the young engineer Herbert Hoover), which supply British and American industries with power throughout China, with Japan crowding British piece goods from India, the Dutch East Indies, China, Australia and East Africa, and her resentment throughout Japan over British efforts at self protection, the clash of national interests has already begun. As for America's part, the recent declaration that the goal of the American navy is to protect national policies, possessions and trade, has set Japan agog. Bitterness is being headlined and placarded throughout the empire. Japan, refusing to be bluffed from her goal, sees an economic "set-up" which out-plays that of any predecessor. Within a few days sail by her first class navy lies the forests, mineral and coal beds and grain valleys of Manchuria, the markets of China and Siam, the manpower of China and Korea, the tropical plantation areas of Formosa, the Philippine, Borneo and the Dutch East Indies. By depreciation of her currency she has learned how to exploit markets and obliterate competition. By her military power she ends the desperate resistance of the boycott, by preaching that the Yellow Race should first stand together to end white dominance in this area and later take up internal grudges she is creating an economic bloc potentially more complete than any ever dreamed of in the western hemisphere. China, convinced that the League and Treaty Powers will not fight her battle for her, falls back upon her immemorial method of surviving the peril—that of compromise and temporary surrender. It was the Chinese sage Lao-tze, founder of Taoism, who taught that water is nobler than rock because it shapes itself to whatever circumstances envelop it, eventually wears away the rock, and in time always wins again to its own level.

SHUT OUT OF ASIA

But the United States and possibly other western nations, lacking this oriental philosophy, may not be able to compromise and wait so long a time. America has already been shut out of Europe by economic war—can we endure or content ourselves to be also shut out of Asia?—If so it can only be through a rigid distribution of our internal resources implying the complete State Socialism.

And so, as I travel through the Pacific, I find the drama shaping up: human minds vaguely trying to prepare against contingencies, each from his own particular standpoint. I see great American naval and military activity in

CONDITIONS IN THE COLONIES

DEBATE IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

LONDON, July 15.
SIR Philip Cunliffe-Lister, in the course of a comprehensive survey of conditions in the Colonies when bringing up the Colonial Office Estimates in the House of Commons, yesterday, said that despite the tremendous fall in prices, the exports from Britain, to the Colonies had increased more than 60 per cent. since 1924.

He reviewed the progressively beneficial effects of the Ottawa Agreements on the Colonies. It was particularly assisting the development of the timber industry, notably Malayan types, hitherto unused, he said.

There was nothing in Sir Samuel Wilson's report on Malaya which even very slightly altered the High Commissioner's present powers and there was no question of altering, by one comma the Treaties binding the British Government here.

Sir Philip scouted the suggestion of "scuttling" made by Col. J. C. Wedgwood. Discussing the Colonial Office Estimates, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister expressed horror at the ignorance of the system of Government in Malaya shown in the speech by Col. J. C. Wedgwood.

It was a perfect travesty of decision to talk about handing over complete control of the administration of the country to the Rajas, he said.

In the course of the debate on the Colonial Office Estimates in the House of Commons yesterday, Major C. F. Entwistle severely commented on the Japanese competition in cotton goods in different parts of the Empire.

Besides the denunciation of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty affecting West Africa there still remained the Congo Basin Treaty, the Anglo-French Convention and our own portion of the Treaty with Japan, he said.

China had increased her tariff, particularly on cotton goods, from 50 to 100 per cent.

That was ostensibly retaliation against Japan, but apparently because China was bound by a most-favoured nation clause, the infliction of hardship on Japan led to the infliction of intolerable hardship on British cotton and other trades.

Major Entwistle referred to the alarming falling off in trade with Hong Kong owing to the increased tariff.

The Secretary for the Colonies, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, replying, was unable to express immediately, the Colonial Office's attitude towards the Treaties. They were perfectly prepared to take whatever action regarding them that the trade interests and the Board of Trade considered the most convenient course.

There were great legal difficulties regarding the Congo Basin Treaty.

The debate then concluded. —Reuter.

THE DEBATE THEN CONCLUDED. —Reuter.

OUR LONDON AIR-MAIL LETTER

A Brilliant Court: The Prince of Wales

(Special Air-Mail Service)

THE KING'S FIFTH COURT

London, June 29.
The King held the fifth and last
Court of the season at Buckingham Palace last night, the first that he has held this year.

Today he will review in Hyde Park the London Territorial Divisions.

His Majesty has now completely thrown off the effects of the rheumatism in the shoulder which recently prevented him from wearing full-dress uniform. Last night he wore that of Colonel-in-Chief of the Scots Guards.

Although the last, it was the most brilliant Court of the year.
The Queen, in a gown of gold lame with a train of Irish lace, was a regal figure. Beside their Majesties in the Royal Circle were the Duke of Gloucester in Hussar uniform, Princess Alice Countess of Athlone, the Earl of Athlone, Princess Helena Victoria and Princess Mary Louise.

The red roses which were the greater part of the floral decoration made a marvellous background for the pastel shades of the debutantes' frocks. There were more brocade gowns than at the previous Courts this year, and with these gowns it was usual to have a full train of old lace.

Miss Betty Nuthall, the lawn tennis player, who sprained her ankle in a recent match, was one of those present. She made her curtsy with her ankle tightly strapped, and was able to walk without betraying any sign that it was in any way injured.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

The Prince of Wales celebrated the thirty-ninth anniversary of his birthday on June 23.

During the day he called at Buckingham Palace to receive congratulations from the King and Queen.
In the afternoon he played a round of golf with his equerry, Major Aird, on the links at Eltham, and in the evening went to Greenwich to see the Naval Pageant. His Royal Highness dined beforehand with Vice-Admiral Barry Doreville, president of the Royal Naval College, Greenwich. After the pageant he returned to Westminster with Lord Fitzwilliam by motor yacht.

Flags flying over Government offices and public buildings formed the only official celebration of the day, but hundreds of telegrams poured into York House from all parts of the world.

The following telegram was received from the Prince of Wales in reply to the Lord Mayor of London's congratulatory message:—

Please convey to my fellow-citizens of London my very sincere appreciation of their good wishes and birthday congratulations.

EDWARD P.

AN EMPEROR'S VASE

Few objects at the exhibition of Chinese art at Messrs. Spink's galleries have excited more admiration than a glass vase standing 14 inches high and brilliantly enamelled in famille-rose colours.

Its bag shape is held to symbolise plenty—which is appropriate since it was made for the personal use of the Emperor Kien Lung.

The painting is the work of Ku
Yueh Hsuan, the famous director of the Imperial glass factory established in the palace at Peiping in 1680.

CHINESE GUESTS

Mrs. Baldwin was missing from her usual post at Lady London-derry's party, just inside the picture gallery. She was at Grosvenor House, receiving the guests for the International Ball, which I found in full swing when I went on from Londonderry House.

One of the largest parties was entertained by Dame Adelaide Livingstone, who had a dinner party for nearly thirty before the ball. Several of them were Chinese guests, whose costumes were a blend of East and West. All of them danced well. The Hungarian Minister arrived rather late. Lady Gladstone was there talking to Lady Glenconner, whose picture-frock was of old-fashioned chintz taffeta.

QUEEN BUYS JADE

The Queen spent an hour yesterday at the Chinese hardstone carving exhibition in Bury Street, St.

James's, London, and bought a jade teapot of fine colour and a small jade box.

THE PRINCE AND U.S.
RYDER TEAM

The Prince of Wales flew to Trent Park, Cockfosters (Middlesex), the residence of Sir Philip Sassoon, to-day, where he met the members of the American Ryder Cup team.

He afterwards played golf with Sir Philip Sassoon and members of the team.

ROYAL PARTY AT GREEN-WICH PAGEANT

The Queen, King Feisul, King
Alfonso, and the Duke of Gloucester visited the Greenwich Pageant on Saturday night. The Queen was attended by the Dowager Countess of Airlie, Lady Victoria Forester, Sir Derek Keppel, and Sir Harry Verney.

The Queen arrived a few minutes after ten and remained in the royal box until the pageant finished. In view of the wretched weather conditions which had been experienced all over London throughout the day, the organisers were certainly fortunate, because not a spot of rain fell during the whole of the evening. The Queen arrived back at Buckingham Palace shortly before one o'clock yesterday morning.

KING FEISUL AT WINDSOR

A large crowd of visitors gave King Feisul of Iraq an enthusiastic reception when he visited Windsor Castle yesterday. The royal party motor in three cars from London and entered Windsor Castle through the private grounds. After being conducted over the state and private apartments, King Feisul walked through the garden at the foot of the Round Tower to St.
George's Chapel, over which he was shown by the Dean of Windsor.

On the return journey the party called at Frogmore and visited the royal mausoleum containing the tombs of Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort.

King Feisul left London last night on the Scottish express on a visit to Edinburgh. He is accompanied by Lieutenant-Colonel Sir
Francis Humphrys, High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief in Iraq, and General Ja'far Pasha, Iraq Minister in London.

ELEVEN ANGLICAN MONKS

A ceremony which, it is believed,
has not taken place in the Church of England since the Reformation, was held in the Church of St.
Chrysostom, Peckham, London, yesterday, when 11 young men, in the presence of the Bishop of Southwark, took vows almost identical to those of monks in the Roman Catholic Church.

Eight years ago the vicar, the Rev. George Potter, founded the Brotherhood of the Holy Cross, which now numbers 11. The brothers dress exactly like Roman Catholic monks, wearing girdles and going about the streets bareheaded.

During the past eight years they have been on probation, but now they have completed their tests.

The ceremony was an impressive
one, and was witnessed by a large congregation.

Half-way through the service the 11 young men stood before the Bishop, and in clear tones made a declaration which they afterwards signed, that as long as they lived they would not possess any money or property of any kind, that they would act in strict obedience to the vicar, that they would only receive food and clothing, and that they would never marry or seek to marry.

LIGHTED PLANES

A feature of the air over London at night recently has been the number of lighted aeroplanes flying about. These machines, with their green and red lights, have been practising both in connection with the R.A.F. pageant at Hendon and searchlight work. The planes go to a certain distance, switch out their lights, and then the searchlight parties have to try and locate them
as speedily as possible.

WHITECHAPEL
CHILD'S STRANGE
CAREERMILLIONAIRE'S WIFE AND LABOUR LEADER

Frankfurt-on-Main. — Mrs. Rose
Pastor Stokes, who had a varied career as a London alum-dresser, a Labour leader, and a New York millionaire's wife, has died of heart failure in the Municipal Hospital here.

She had been in hospital since April, and was operated on by a cancer specialist, Professor Schmie-den. Her body will be cremated and sent to New York.

Mrs. Stokes will be remembered as the "child of the Whitechapel Ghetto" whose marriage to Mr. J.
G. Phelps Stokes, the American millionaire settlement worker and publicist, ended after 10 years, in the Divorce Court in 1925.

She was born in Russia in 1879,
and her parents, Russian Jews, brought her to London when she was seven. Her childhood days of poverty in London ended at the age of eleven, when she migrated to America. There she became a cigar-factory girl in Cleveland.

It was while she was engaged in settlement work in New York that she met Mr. J. G. Phelps Stokes, and they were married in 1906.
Subsequently they were involved in numerous Socialistic and Communist troubles, and both were arrested on charges of "exhorting the workers to rise against their oppressors."

In 1925, after disagreement with her husband over political questions, the marriage was dissolved.

SIR J. BARRIE AS GODFATHER

Sir James Barrie yesterday became godfather to the infant son of Mr. Peter Llewellyn Davies, the publisher, and the Hon. Mrs.
Llewellyn Davies, formerly the Hon.
Margaret Ruthven, one of the "Ruthven Twins." Mr. Davies
was the original Peter Pan.

The christening ceremony was performed at St. Columba's, Pont-street, by the Rev. Archibald Fleming, the minister of the church.

The child's full name is Ruthven Barrie Llewellyn Davies. His godparents, besides Sir James Barrie, are Air Commodore Shaw (Col.
Lawrence of Arabia), the Hon.
Mrs. John Barran, and Lady Edmonstone.

VANISHED BARGAINS

Mr. Francis Mallett, who has arranged his fifth annual exhibition of antiques to help the National Art Collections Fund, tells me that the piece de resistance in the show
—a superb Charles II. cabinet of scarlet lacquer—was found in a small house at the seaside.

"But the owner was very well aware of its value," he added.
"and I had to pay a stiff price."
The day has passed for picking up bargains.

Just thirty years ago some impoorished gentlemen living at Worthing found that an old unframed portrait which had been hanging in their little hall, behind the door, was able to fetch 2,000
guineas at Christie's.

Mr. Mallett informs me that there is a growing craze for eightteenth-century Dutch silver caskets.
They will soon be rising in value.

"WHITE ZOMBIE"
STRANGE TALE OF
MAGIC IN HAITI

Hollywood has finally produced a character portrayal so realistic that when it was flashed upon the screen it scared the life out of the actress who portrayed it.

The portrayal is in "White Zombie," the United Artists Picture which is now showing at the King's Theatre, and it was done by Madge Bellamy who returns to the screen after a two years' retirement.

The story of "White Zombie" concerns itself with that black sorcery practiced in Haiti which has to do with dead bodies. Reports of these practices had been seeping into the more populated sections of Haiti for years, and recently an American author verified them through personal observation.

Miss Bellamy, in the story, is placed under a spell by the leader of the "Zombies," a sinister sorcerer who traffics in dead bodies secretly dug from the graveyard, and, after she is pronounced dead by her family physician and interred in a large mausoleum, her body is carried along that night by the "Zombies" and taken away to a mountain retreat. There the sorcerer brings her back to life, but only permits her the animation of a sleep-walker.

Miss Bellamy went through these scenes one morning, and late that day she and other members of the company went into the projection room to look at the result. That part of the sequence in which she is seen lying in a coffin was flashed upon the screen and, after taking one look, Miss Bellamy let out a piercing scream and bolted for the door. And nothing could prevail upon her to return.

Now Miss Bellamy is a convert to cremation.

"PLATINUM BLONDE"
A MARRIAGE COMEDY

Do women make men fickle, or are they just naturally born that way? Now take Stew Smith, the $75 per week reporter who won the rich and beautiful Anne Schuyler in a whirlwind courtship that ended in a marriage that landed in headlines on the front page! Stew was head-over-heels, up-to-the-eyes in love with the glamorous Anne—and it wasn't her money, or her culture or her position that he loved—and does he stay in love with her?

Well, that's what makes the story of "Platinum Blonde," written by Harry L. Chandler and Douglas W. Churchill, with adaptation by Jo Swerling, continually by Robert Riskin. The beautiful Loretta Young is feature at the head of a tremendous cast including Robert Williams, Jean Harlow, Walter Catlett, Louise Closser Hale, Edmund Bruce, Claude Allister Reginald Owen, Halliwell Hobbs and Donald Dillaway. It's a Columbia picture showing next week at the Queen's Theatre, directed by Frank Capra and lavishly produced.

A COMIC FILM "ON TRIAL"

NO "LAUGHTER IN COURT"

London.—A maker of mirth failed during the whole hour's run of the film in which he stars to provoke one laugh.

And the mirth-provoker was none other than Sydney Howard, stage and screen comedian who has made thousands rock with laughter in theatre and cinema the world over. It was not his fault, writes a "Press" representative present at the very private showing of the film.

The famous comedian was at his funniest, and the plot of the story gave him every chance to be at his best as a generally, inebriated and unwitting meddler in other people's affairs.

The explanation is that Sydney Howard's film, "Almost A Divorce," was being shown to one of the most serious-minded audiences that have ever listened to a talkie.

Without Comment.

In the audience were a Judge of the High Court, Mr. Justice Clauson, two K.C.s, other counsel, and people concerned in a Chancery Division case in which infringement of copyright was alleged. Mr. Justice Clauson, who was hearing the case, had decided to see the film.

The film ended, the audience passed out to the Law Courts.

There were no comments from them as they left the cinema on the humour they had just seen and heard. They were quite serious.

Mr. Justice Clauson dismissed the claim, which was brought by Mr. Ellis Dagnall, playwright and actor, of Addiscombe-road, Croydon, alleging that the British and Dominion Film Corporation, Ltd., Regent-street W., had infringed the copyright in his plays, "Nearly Divorced" and "Divorced for a Year."

THE KING'S CUP
AIR THRILLER AT CENTRAL

"The King's Cup" which is showing at the Central Theatre, is, as its title indicates, an air thriller. The story is a romantic one about the love affair of a pretty shop girl and a pilot and how, when he is disqualified after a crash, she gets her pilot's certificate and enters for the King's Cup.

A notable feature of the film is the King's Cup race round Britain which was actually taken during last year's race when Captain Hope won. The result is fascinating in the extreme, giving as it does some wonderful shows of familiar stretches of country receding below the plane.

The picture was produced by the British and Dominion studios, with Dorothy Bouchier and Harry Milton in the leading roles.

"HELL BELOW"
SPLENDID SUBMARINE

Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston, Madge Evans, Jimmy Durante, Eugene Pallette and Robert Young head an outstanding cast in "Hell Below," sensational drama of submarine warfare which is showing at the Queen's Theatre as a filmization of the widely-read novel, "Figs," by Commander Edward Ellsberg. With thrills of submarine adventure, action under the surface of the ocean, torpedoing of destroyers, the destruction of an Italian fortress, and harrowing escapes from depth bombs and mine layers, as a vivid background, the story depicts the romance between a naval lieutenant and the daughter of his commander. The picture was filmed with the cooperation of the United States Navy, much of its action having been photographed on location at the naval base in Honolulu. Jack Conway directed.

rushed to get the picture under way early in September. The director has not yet been chosen but Edwin Burke, Academy prize winner, is scheduled to write the screen play and dialogue.

The selection of Warner Baxter for the leading role is the result of his new popularity since his work in "42nd Street" and "I Loved You Wednesday." Since it was first hinted that Fox would make the picture, in which William Farnum soared to fame as "Sidney Carton" in 1927, every male star in Hollywood has been offered for the dual role.

This will be shown at the "King's Theatre."

"THE SILVER LINING"

TALE WITH A REAL IRISH
COLLEEN IN THE LEAD

The luck of the Irish—some of them.

Anyway the fairies of the lakes were certainly good to little Maureen O'Sullivan, until only a couple of years ago just a pretty Irish colleen running to school with her books, and to mass on Sunday with no thought of the stage, the screen or the gay outside world.

Then John McCormack, the great Irish tenor, went to Ireland to make a picture. He wanted an Irish girl for his lead, and more than one hundred lasses responded to the call. None of them would do. So far as McCormack was concerned, they all lacked the personality, the beauty or the warm charm that he wanted for his heroine.

Then on the road one day, Maureen O'Sullivan drifted across the path of the tenor. Somewhere off in the bogs the leprechauns must have laughed, for not sooner did John see little Maureen than he said, "There's the girl!"

And that's how Maureen O'Sullivan happened to go to Hollywood where she scored such a hit that she has been busy ever since, and that is how she went on to success after success until she landed in the leading role of "The Silver Lining," which comes to the King's Theatre next attraction.

Little Maureen, known to millions of screen fans as the wistful Irish lassie, will be seen in an entirely different role in "The Silver Lining," the first of a series of Patrician Pictures to be directed by Alan Crosland.

Heretofore Miss O'Sullivan has been confined to youthful delineations. Now she is stepping out. Alan Crosland, famous director, made the discovery that she possessed splendid dramatic qualities. In "The Silver Lining," Maureen makes a strong bid for dramatic acting honours that comes well within the realm of triumphs. As a petted and pampered society sub who reaches the very heights of emotional ability when she finds herself in a penal institution and is forced to do menial labour.

Here she realizes that she has had the wrong start on life and makes a solemn vow that if she is ever released she'll start life all over again—which she does.

Her transition in the production is a thing of beauty and her ability to properly portray the role allotted her reveals a much greater talented Maureen than we have seen heretofore.

This is Alan Crosland's first independent production and he has been permitted full rein, which is qualified in the picture.

John Warburton, new leading man in pictures, Betty Compton, Mary Doran, Montagu Love and a score of other screen players illuminate the brilliant cast.

"The Silver Lining" is an original story by Hal Conklin.

KING FEISAL IN LONDON

City Address In Gold Casket

FOREIGN OFFICE BANQUET

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, June 29. King Feisal of Iraq, who was yesterday the guest of the City of London at luncheon, and of the Foreign Minister, Sir John Simon, at a banquet at the Foreign Office last night, thanked London for its hospitality in a gracefully turned phrase.

"Among the Arabs," he said, at Guild hall, "hospitality is esteemed as one of the highest virtues, and if this estimate of its moral value be well founded, then assuredly the City of London must be counted one of the most virtuous as well as one of the richest cities of the world."

Golden Roses.

A mass of beautiful golden roses was the chief note in the decoration of the reception-room at the Foreign Office and the Locarno Room, where the banquet was given.

They stood in great bowls and baskets on the tables, harmonising happily with the gilt which, on ceilings and furniture, is so plentifully used in the decoration of these imposing rooms. Dark crimson curtains and carpets made a striking background.

Sir John Simon awaited King Feisal at the entrance giving on the main courtyard, where an awning connected it with the archway to Downing-street. He escorted King Feisal up the red-carpeted main stairway, decorated with groups of palms, to the lofty reception-room.

Three the main body of guests were gathered. Full-length portraits of the King and Queen at either end of the room and a large coat-of-arms cut high up in the panelling caught the eye. The general impression, with chairs and tables scattered informally, was of a French drawing-room. A band played in the small inner room.

Fifty-eight places were set at the long mahogany dining table. Portraits of Georgian kings and queens looked down from the walls.

Prince George was among those present. There were no speeches.

The Government hospitality officials did not begin the work of decoration until less than an hour before the reception, and thus the flowers were in their full freshness.

Appeal to the City.

During his visit to the City King Feisal gave every evidence of his deep appreciation of the warmth of London's welcome.

The reception in the library was a scene of rich colour—a scene such as no other capital can furnish. The picture yesterday was made up of the uniforms of the fighting Services, the Levee dress of Cabinet Ministers and others, the varied uniforms of the Iraqi suite, and the robes of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Councillors.

Members of the Cabinet present were: The Secretary for War (Viscount Hailsham), the Home Secretary (Sir John Gilmour), the Secretary for Air (the Marquis of Londonderry) and the Minister of Health (Sir E. Hilton Young). Field-Marshal Viscount Allenby headed the English suite in attendance on King Feisal.

The Recorder (Sir Ernest Wild, K.C.) read the City's address of welcome, and an illuminated copy, on vellum was presented to his Majesty in a gold casket.

At the luncheon which followed, the Lord Mayor, in giving the toast of King Feisal, said:

"His Majesty is the sovereign of what has been aptly described as the newest of States but the most ancient of countries. In the brief span of twelve years, under the wise guidance of his Majesty, a new State and a new nation have been brought into existence, self-reliant, prosperous, and progressive. By that achievement his Majesty has added yet another illustrious page to the history of a country which has been the source of civilisation for half the world and we feel confident that, under his leadership Iraq, rich in natural resources and in the sterling qualities of her peoples, will recover, and may even transcend, the great glories of her past.

"We hope and trust that the spirit of friendly co-operation which to-day so happily subsists between Iraq and this country in the realms of politics and of commerce, will, under the enlightened rule of his Majesty, be fostered and strengthened to the enduring advantage of both countries."

The King's Reply.

King Feisal received a great ovation on rising to respond. Speaking again in English, he said:

"It is a very great privilege and pleasure for me to be received to-day as an honoured guest by the Lord Mayor and Corporation of this great and historic City of London, whose princely hospitality is justly famous throughout the world."

DAILY PRESS EDITOR AND A "JOB'S COMFORTER"

18.—The Case of the Lancashire Witch

WHAMPOLA, May 21, 1858.

SIR.—Sympathising as we all up here do with you on your incarceration, and indignant as we are at the Government heaping on itself such an amount of scandal, we are entirely at a loss to conceive to what extent the Hong Kong authorities can go, without bringing upon themselves the vengeance of the law, or the unanimous indignation of the Colonists.

If a case ever justified the interference of the press, in demanding an explanation regarding a doubtful transaction, that case is the charter of the Lancashire Witch. It is true that such engagements do not fall within the province of the Colonial Government. Whence then does this nefarious proceeding emanate? Certainly not from Sir Michael Seymour, inasmuch as I know he disapproved of it. She is not only taken up at double the market value, but the engagement seems to be permanent. The master has actually received a stock of ship chandlery which he ordered out, and is underselling all the ship-chandlers at Whampoa, which, having no expenses to pay, can hardly be wondered at. I submit, Mr. Editor, this is a gross act of injustice to such of her Majesty's subjects as carry on that branch of trade at Whampoa. It is tantamount to Her Majesty's Government carrying on trade as interlopers.

By the way, can you tell me whether the Lancashire Witch was in her present state when she was chartered, or whether she became so through going aground up the river? At all events she is at present as crooked as a ram's horn, and I am told was so when taken

WEDDING OF MISS WENDY ROBERTS TO MR. G. P. FISHER

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, June 29.

A very pretty wedding, at which nearly 200 guests were present, took place at St. Peter's Church, Dulwich Common, London, on Saturday, June 24, when Miss Wendy Evelyn Morris Roberts, only child of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Roberts of 10, Lovelace Road, Dulwich (formerly of Hong Kong), was married to Mr. Geoffrey Ponsford Fisher, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Fisher of 111, Allyn Park, Dulwich. Mr. Roberts (father of the bride) was formerly General Manager of the Hong Kong Tramways and Mr. Fisher (father of the bridegroom) is manager of the West End branch of the Westminster Bank.

The Ven. G. MacDermott, Archdeacon of Norwich, officiated and he was assisted by the Rev. G. K. Budd (cousin of the bridegroom) and by the Rev. H. M. J. Burdett, vicar of St. Peter's Church.

The Bride's Dress.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of exquisitely beaded angel-skin lace with skirt of embroidered net; her net veil also formed a long and graceful train. She carried a shower bouquet of white carnations, lilies of the valley and orange blossom.

The five grown-up bridesmaids and two children, wearing dresses of white silk organdie and lace, with wreaths of white flowers on their heads, and carrying white Victorian robes were Miss Primrose Lewis, Miss Jean Witney, Miss Margaret Tierney, Miss Betty Cartwright (formerly of Hong Kong), Miss Stella Ingram, Miss Elizabeth Puch and Miss Wendy Kennard.

The Ven. G. MacDermott, Archdeacon of Norwich, officiated and he was assisted by the Rev. G. K. Budd (cousin of the bridegroom) and by the Rev. H. M. J. Burdett, vicar of St. Peter's Church.

The duties of "best man" were carried by Mr. Eric Ponsford Fisher, brother of the bridegroom, and the groomsmen were Mr. Francis P. Fisher (brother), Roy Cooper Smith, David Witney, Hamilton Hill and Ronald Payne. The bride was given away by her father.

The service was fully choral and the church was most tastefully decorated with palms, lilies, hydrangeas and marguerites.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Toksowa Hotel, Dulwich Common, after which the bride and bridegroom left for the honeymoon, which is being spent motoring in Scotland. The bride wore a travelling suit of blue and grey crepe crêpe, with hat to match.

Gifts from Hong Kong.

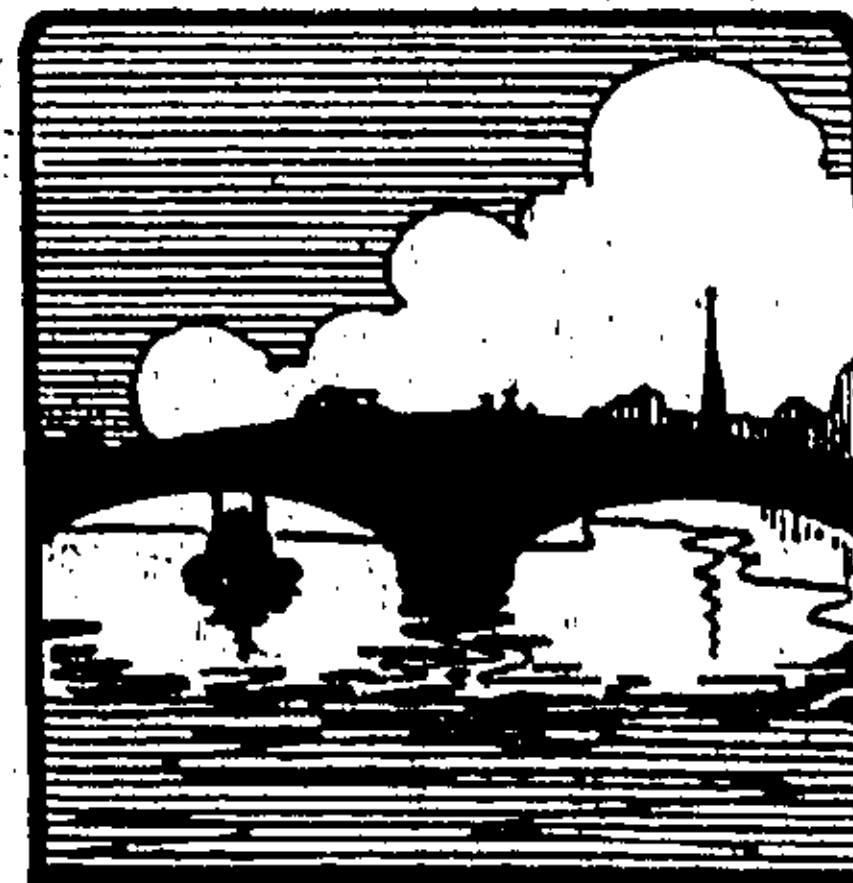

Amongst the numerous presents displayed in the billiard room of the Toksowa Hotel our representative saw many lovely gifts from Hong Kong friends, amongst them were a clock from Lt.-Col. John Ward which was accompanied by a very characteristic letter, a lace luncheon set from Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Chapman, a handsome tea and coffee service and tray in pewter from The Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, together with an autograph book signed by members of the London staff of the Bank, a cake-stand from Mr. and Mrs. MacGregor, a silver cake-stand from Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Clark and a crystal bowl from Mrs. H. A. Cartwright. The gifts from Mr. and Mrs. Roberts to their daughter included a motor car, pictures, house linen, a sewing machine, whilst the future residence of the young couple was the joint gift of the respective parents.

actual interests.

"My country has received much help in the past from Great Britain, and looks confidently for further help in the future; and I know that she will not look in vain. We need your help to develop the vast latent resources of our country; and the City of London, the birthplace of so many merchant adventurers, has never failed to appreciate the opportunities which are open to appreciate the opportunities which are open to enterprise in distant lands.

"The nations of the world are now gathered together in London to seek remedies for their economic ills, and I am sure, too, that with the co-operation of the City, Iraq will be able to make her own contribution to that restoration of commercial prosperity which we all so urgently desire."

CHINESE AMATEUR THEATRICALS

IN AID OF N.T. MEDICAL WORK.

Arrangements are now underway for a series of Chinese theatrical performances to be staged at the K'o Shing Theatre in aid of the St. John Ambulance Brigade medical work in the New Territories. The proceeds realised will be wholly devoted to this purpose. The amateur troupe which played so successfully last year in raising funds for the same object will again appear at the theatre for three nights, commencing from the 21st instant. At its last performance the troupe won great admiration from the audience and since then it has been augmented, new stars have joined and many gorgeous dresses and pieces of scenery acquired.

In view of these additional new acquisitions it should now be a really first rate show, entirely different from that of last year. All who wish to see some good plays and at the same time to help a most deserving cause are requested to book their seats early.

If Life has any starting-point, whatever it is, then the great I AM is a myth" (p. 550).

LESSON SERMON

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST—HONG KONG

"Life" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 16th.

The Golden Text was: "This is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent" (John 17:3).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me; and they shall say to me, What is his name? What shall I say unto them? And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM; and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me to you" (Ex 3:13-14).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the

IN NANKING
TO-DAYBig City Planning
SchemesA MODERN HOTEL
WANTED

NANKING, July 15. Nanking presents a pretty picture these summer days with the wooded hills slashed with brown and the verdant undulating countryside which seems to run away from the massive city walls writes the N.C.D.N. correspondent.

The fine weather, too, has had a beneficial effect on the road system.

The Roads.

The capital's roads even if they have a firm stone basis, are rivers of mud in winter while the dirt roads have the habit of disappearing entirely although motor cars plough through them with the indifference of the Chinese chauffeur. There was some anxiety regarding the level of the Yangtze which threatened to flood the city. Indeed floods did occur at the bottom of Changshan Road which is a low-lying district. The river has now subsided. Work is continuing in demolishing the brown sand hills in the city for material which is being used to fill in the lower levels and strengthen the river dykes. A light railway operates to carry the sand from inside the city to the river front and great inroads have been made in one hill just inside the East Gate.

Indemnity Fund Building.

The week has been distinguished by two corner stone laying ceremonies in one day. On Monday, Dr. Chu Chai Hui, Minister of Communications, laid the corner stone of the administration building of the Sino-British Indemnity Fund in the presence of a distinguished gathering. This building should prove a great assistance in helping the Board of Trustees to administer the fund, which amounts to £11,000,000 and is being invested in productive enterprises which will provide funds for the educational endowment to follow. The building is in the new residential area in Shans Road but there are few buildings yet in sight, except at the top of the road where the front of a building exists and is variously described as belonging to the new waterworks or some minor department of the Kuomintang.

On Monday afternoon, Dr. Lo Wen Kan, Minister of Foreign Affairs, laid the corner stone of the new Foreign Ministry in the presence of members of the Ministry staff. Although many magnificent homes for other lesser important ministries have been built in recent years; especially along Chungshan Road which is becoming the capital's show street, the Foreign Ministry has been the neglected child of Nanking's official family. The haphazard conglomerate of buildings, some of which are no more than wooden huts, have seriously reflected on the dignity and importance of Dr. Lo's department, which has been the most hard-worked department of the government in recent years. Fortunately, funds have been secured for new building which is going up alongside the present Ministry and its dimensions indicate it will be a fitting home for this department which does more bug gets less than any other department.

Swimming Amenities.

The summer days have brought one important question before Nanking, both Chinese and foreigners. What about a swim? At present there is only one swimming pool in Nanking. That is out at the national stadium in the Mausoleum Park. The pool is certainly one of the largest in the Far East and is large enough to meet a portion of the capital's demands for swimming, but unfortunately after a year's trial it has been found too expensive to operate at the price charged. Although large crowds visited the pool last summer the charge of 20 cents a head proved too small to permit its maintenance, and at present there are not sufficient people willing to pay more. A group of Chinese of the better class, however, have started their own country club on Chungshan Road, and in addition to tennis courts a 33-metre open air swimming pool is being constructed and will be ready in a few weeks. It is interesting to learn that at this club there has been a large number of applications from women for membership Nanking's social amenities for women being neglected at present.

City Planning.

There is no denying the vigorous spirit of city planning in the capital. Many plans for all sorts of public and private enterprises are in the air, and a good deal of building and reconstruction is proceeding. Long-needed improvements are being effected at the railway station where the station building is being enlarged, and work is

NEW BATHING
CLUBOPENED AT KENNEDY
TOWN YESTERDAY

The Chung Sing Benevolent Association opened their new semi-permanent Bathing Pavilion at Kennedy Town yesterday. Mr. Wong Kwong Tin, performing the opening ceremony in the presence of a gathering of several thousands.

Following the ceremony tea and refreshments were served and speeches were made by a number of the officials of the association.

Mr. Wong Kwong Tin, the Chairman, expressed the hope that China would be able to produce better and better athletes year by year. He recalled the days when it was considered very sporting for a Chinese youth if he could kick a shuttlecock about or if he knew a little about Chinese boxing. Today ideas are quite different and instead of the "gentle" type among the young men and women being regarded as the best people, those who were athletically inclined and were the possessors of good health and stature were regarded as the best.

Mr. Liu Yam Suen, in a short speech said that although the association existed as a sort of charitable organization, the fact is that it had a bathing club of its own made up of no less a charitable institution. It was one of the best forms of charity, he thought, to provide the poorer members of the community with facilities to swim in summer.

YET ANOTHER
CONFERENCE!PHILIPPINES A GOOD
POINT FOR ONE CHAPTER

Manila.—Alexander Hume Ford, director of the Pan-Pacific Union, with headquarters in Honolulu, has arrived in Manila to organize a Pan-Pacific association in the Philippine Islands. He came here at the request of the legislative trade commission, which went to China and Japan from Manila several weeks ago.

Mr. Ford was met upon his arrival by Gregorio Nieves, former representative.

The Philippines association will be organized along the lines of Pan-Pacific associations in China and Japan, and it will become a member of the Pan-Pacific Union. The chief aims of the Pan-Pacific Union, as outlined by Mr. Ford, are:

To bring together, from time to time, in friendly conference, leaders in all lines of thought and action of the Pacific area, that they may become better acquainted.

To bring together ethical leaders from every Pacific land who will meet for the study of problems of fair dealing and ways to advance international justice in the Pacific area.

To bring together scientific leaders, and to collate accurate information concerning the material resources of Pacific lands.

To study the ideas and opinions that mold public opinion among the peoples of the several Pacific areas, and to bring men together who can understandingly discuss these in a spirit of fairness.

To bring together in round-table discussion in every Pacific land those of all races resident therein who desire to bring about better understanding and co-operative effort among the peoples and races of the Pacific.

Mr. Ford suggests that Manila and Baguio would be ideal centers for the holding of Pacific conferences.—Manila Bulletin.

proceeding on a number of new platforms to enlarge rolling stock capacity. The station compound is also being cleared and enlarged to handle traffic and facilitate passenger amenities, and it affords much wider space than formerly when the visitor to Nanking thought the compound was just a mass of rickshaw coolies and motor cars.

A project is also being discussed for building a modern hotel on one of the hills which would not only afford better accommodation for visitors, including diplomats most of whom have to stay at the existing hotels, but might also attract people from Shanghai for the weekend. The proposals include a modern hotel with a nine-hole golf course and a swimming pool in beautiful surroundings—more like a spa than an hotel. Point is given to the merit of this project by increased interest in road-building, typified by the Shanghai-Hangchow-Nanking highway, the completion of the new Nanking-Wuhu highway, and hopes of an eventual link between Shanghai and Nan-

MURDER CULT IN JAPANPriest Who Was A Military SpyHOW MINISTERS ARE ASSASSINATED

Tokyo.—The first trial of the accused affiliated to the Ketsumeidan (Blood Sworn League), which is responsible for the assassination of Mr. Junnosuke Inoue, ex-Minister of Finance, and Baron Takuma Dan, the eminent Tokyo business man, began in the Tokyo Chihō Saibansho on the 25th ultimo, Judge Sakamaki presiding. Two more trials have been held since then, and the shocking nature of their plots has been more clearly revealed to the public.

The examination of Nishio Inoue, the leader, naturally attracted the largest share of public attention. Asked by the Court at the first trial about his antecedents, he stated that he joined the staff of the South Manchuria Railway Company and was engaged in collecting information for the Army General Staff. In the Tsingtau campaign of 1919 he was a military spy in the service of the Japanese.

Builds a Temple.

On his return home, he organized a society called the Gokoku Seisha (National Defence Holy Society), with Count Tanaka, formerly Minister of the Imperial Household, Mr. Chisen Asahina, a well-known journalist, and others as advisers. Afterwards, he built himself a Nichiren temple called the Gokoku-do. By this time he had been a firm believer in the Nichiren Sect, and his temple attracted a number of young men with a fervent desire for the reform of the State. On some of these youths he fixed as his future co-workers, and gave them the necessary training. Among these were Eishi Furuchi, Tadashi Konuma (assassin of Mr. Inoue), Goro Hishiruma (assassin of Baron Dan), Daiji Kurosawa and Nagamitsu Kawasaki.

In October, 1930, he left the Gokoku-do, which is located at Ishihama, Ibaragi prefecture, and lived for some time at the Kinkei Gakuin, a private school, where he made the acquaintance of many military and naval officers, who frequented it, as well as young students.

Meeting With Military and Naval Officers.

The first meeting of the young military and naval officers, students and other civilians, totalling about thirty, was held on August 25th, 1931, the Japan Young Men's Association Hall in the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine.

At a later meeting held in an unoccupied house in Tokyo, owned by Seikyo Gondo, his acquaintance, on January 9, 1932, at which were present four naval officers as well as his followers, it was agreed that political and financial leaders should be assassinated on the Kigenetsu (Constitution Day), February 11. Yoshitaka Yotsumoto, a confederate, was accordingly sent into the provinces to confide the plot to fellow-thinkers in many places. This plan fell through, after all, owing to delay in the return to Tokyo of Yotsumoto.

Another meeting was held at the same place on the night of February 31. At that time, there were evident indications of the imminence of the dispatch of the naval officers to Shanghai to cope with the situation which had been growing serious there, and so it was finally decided that the civilians alone should carry out the assassination plot.

Leaders Marked Down.

Asked the methods of assassination, Nishio Inoue replied that about twenty leaders of the ruling classes had been singled out for assassination and as it was considered difficult for one person to assassinate two or three men, it was agreed that one assassin should aim at one victim. The leaders selected as objects of murderous assaults were Prince Saionji, Count Makino (Lord Keeper of the privy Seal), Count Ito (Privy Councillor), Baron Wakatsuki (President of the Ministry), Mr. Inukai (then Premier and President of the Seiyukai), Dr. Suzuki (present President of the Seiyukai), Mr. Tokonami, Mr. Inoue, Baron Shidehara, Baron Dan (Mitsui), Mr. Ikeda (Mitsui), and Mr. Kimura (Mitsubishi). As they could not decide who should be regarded as the representatives of the Yasuda and the Okura firms, nobody was marked down in regard to these interests.

Murder Merely a Means to an End.

At the second hearing Inoue added that he did not believe in party politics. As the assassination of the Presidents of the political

HONG KONG NOMADS ON TOUR

A DRAWN GAME AT TAUNTON

AUSPICIOUS START AGAINST SOMERSET STRAGGLERS

By dinner time on Sunday, 17th June, the majority of the Hong Kong cricketers, who are forming what is officially styled the "Hong Kong Nomads" side, had cast up at the Castle Hotel at Taunton where they all dined together and talked over future arrangements for the trip. There I found them early on Monday morning (fancy getting up at six at my time of life!) complete in several cases with wives. There was an adjournment to the County Ground for a little practice. The home team, who seemed to come from places nearly as far away as the Nomads, were a bit late on arriving but the game started at noon, with a sub fielding for F. Baker, who had not turned up. (It was not until Tuesday we learned his yacht had been damaged and he had been adrift on the high seas for hours until finally towed into Fowey on Monday.)

A Difficult Question.

There had been local showers and the weather looked threatening at first. Both Captains openly confessed to a hope that they would lose the toss. Mitchell lost it, alight and after some hesitation Hoskyns, the genial skipper of the Stragglers, decided to bat. It proved a wise decision in the end. The opening pair were both men who had played several times for Somerset and it was an encouraging feature of the game that they were really the only pair who got on top of our bowling. Had a catch been taken early on in the slips it is quite on the cards that we should have had them out for a very meagre score.

Beck's Magnificent Bowling.

Beck, bowling with a strong wind from the direction of mid-on has never bowled better. Gaskell dropped one a foot short of Richardson in the slips in the first over, and was dropped at first slip before he had made ten. After that the pair batted, stubbornly. Richardson, Anderson and Smith all kept the pavilion end going but the wind was so strong that it was a thankless task and they never looked like getting a wicket. Reid relieved Beck after a bit but he could do nothing right and soon Beck resumed. By this time the wicket was becoming definitely faster, and at 81 he turned one in a bit and Gaskell just touched it into his sticks. A few runs later Bligh was palpably b.w. to Beck and at fifteen-time there were a hundred runs on the board for two wickets.

A Change of Fortune.

After tiffin the sun had come out and the wicket was very fast though it did not appear to help the bowlers much. Beck got busy and only a left-hander—Barnes—made much show. Only a plucky last wicket stand of twenty brought the score to a hundred and seventy. Reid was completely off colour save for one perfect ball that bowled Hewitt. On the whole it was an excellent performance to get rid of a useful batting side so cheaply, though it was clear that another "stock" bowler is needed. Richardson is, even on a sticky wicket, more of a change bowler, and should not be down more than two or three overs running. Anderson was short of practice and the wind bothered him.

Hong Kong Bat.

There seemed no reason why the score should not be headed when Hong Kong started in bright sunshine, but a leg-swinging beat Richardson in the first over. Anderson and Mitchell put a much better complexion on things until the latter tried to put an off break without covering up and was bowled. Two more wickets fell quickly parties would be followed by the choice of their successors at the head of these parties, a few leaders of each party likely to be chosen as such had been singled out for assassination. Murder was not, however, their final object, it was merely the means to the end, and he could not understand why they were charged with murder.

Scorn for Individualism.

Shoji Furuchi, who was next examined, said that he is a graduate of the Ibaragi Prefectural Normal School.

He was assigned the task of assassinating Mr. Ikeda, of the Mitsui, but failed to find an opportunity for executing his plan.

Heaven and Makino.

Yoshitaka Yotsumoto, in reply to the Court, stated that when he was still in the High School, he together with Ikebukuro, another accused, and other school mates, organized a society called the Ketsumeidan (Respect for Heaven Society), and acted in conjunction with the

and then Smith joined Anderson in a gallant stand. They were still together at ten time, and had taken the score past the century when Anderson nibbled at an off ball and was taken. Smith then took over the scoring and Evans, Hamilton and Clarabutt all stopped some time—especially the last named who defended stubbornly for half an hour while thirty-two runs were added. Howard, a friend of Beck's was playing vice Baker and though he has only his right arm he surprised the bowler by smacking his first ball beautifully through the covers for a couple and stayed until Clarabutt was out. At ten minutes to seven the innings closed with the Nomads only thirteen runs in arrears.

Old Friends.

Before the match Colin Sara arrived from Weston and umpired very adequately all day. Mr. and Mrs. Griffin (B. & S.) and Mr. Mair (I may have spelt this wrong) were also there. It seems likely that we shall be running across lots of people before the tour is over.

Tuesday's Play.

A shower about breakfast time was not a very cheerful opening to the second day and it proved to be a great disappointment. True, we managed to start at about half past eleven but ten minutes later there was a tremendous downpour which, though short, left the wicket easy. A second shower about half past twelve stopped play again and an early lunch was taken. The unpleasant conditions and easy wicket were implemented by a trace of stiffness in most bowlers and Bligh and Gaskell after a very quiet start did pretty much as they liked after tiffin. Beck had bowled ten overs for twenty-six runs. His eleventh cost twenty-five including two magnificent sixes into the river Tone—all to Gaskell—(6, 4, 4, 6, 4, 1). Two sixes went over the pavilion and two into the church yard at the other end. A very pretty piece of clean hitting. The rain started again and Gaskell was stumped in trying to complete his hundred and a quick run to the pavilion was the order of the day. In ten minutes the ground was nearly under water, and then for a change it started hailing. Hoskyns had declared but by four-thirty it was clear cricket was over for the day.

A Pleasant Game.

It was a sad ending to a very pleasant game with a cheerful and genial team of opponents, and has served well to shake the team down. There will of course be changes in the side. Baker comes in for the Newton Abbot (S. Devon) and Wells matches. E. B. Reed will be playing at Newton Abbot, Exeter and Sidmouth while Sayer comes in at Wells. J. B. MacFarlan comes in to keep wicket at Exeter (Devon Dimplings) and Sidmouth. The short stay at Taunton has proved that the tour is going to be a very pleasant one whether we win or lose our matches, and every one is very cheerful—possibly the more so for thinking of our dear friends stewing and labouring in Hong Kong!

This comes by air-mail, but I fancy the rest will come by Siberia. The P.O. here is most vague about the air-mail to Hong Kong and anyway an air-mail letter I got from Hong Kong took 18 days! So as I am not sure if my Editor will stand for heavy air-mail postage, (Judgment reserved—Ed.), I fancy I shall try the surer route.

Changing China

A quarterly non-political review of life and conditions in China.

"... Changing China is an interesting and useful quarterly. The articles which it contains have been written in the form of letters by men and women of various ranks of life who are living in the interior of China. They are not professional writers with any axe to grind but are describing what they have actually seen and experienced. The reader gets a picture or rather a series of pictures of life in Modern China, and at the same time a resumé of the progress made in industrial development during the past quarter."

HONG KONG, JULY 17, 1933.

WORLD TRADE LOSS 65 PER CENT.

"The universal nature of the present economic problem requires that its solution, if it is to be found, must emanate from the pooled wisdom and co-operation of all the nations. Hence the present assembly in London of the representatives of sixty-six nations in a World Economic Conference which is attempting to achieve the economic salvation of the world." These words were written before the Conference met, when hopes ran high that something would be done. However, the Conference is to "adjourn" in ten days' time, with little or nothing accomplished. No colossus has stood astride the world and raised the recumbent nations. Anxious and frightened men, who know very little, their eyes being blinded by the storm, have made a few speeches and eaten a few dinners, and now they are going back to their warrens.

How great have been the ravages of the depression in the body of world-trade has been strikingly shown in the figures recently issued by the Economic Intelligence Department of the League of Nations. These show that the total value of world trade for the first three months of this year is 35 per cent. only of its value in the first quarter of 1929. Except for a slight recovery in the last quarter of 1932 the decline has been continuous for four years, and the level reached in the first quarter of this year is the lowest yet recorded. The continuous nature of the decline is indicated by the following percentages. Taking the value of the imports and exports of 49 countries, which in 1929 represented about ninety per cent. of the total of world trade, as the datum—100; in 1930 imports were 92 per cent; they were 65 per cent. in 1931; they were 43 per cent. in 1932, and for the first quarter of the current year, they were 35 per cent. Similarly with exports, the figures undergoing a decline from 89 per cent. to 62, 41, and 35 per cent.—the last figure again being for the period January-March, 1933.

The above figures are, it will have been noticed, for the value of the goods. But even in volume there has been a great falling off of trade. Estimates in this case are as yet unavailable for 1933, but the annual decline between 1929 and 1932 was as follows: 7 per cent. in 1930, 9 to 10 per cent. in 1931, and 15 per cent. in 1932. The fall in the value of world trade in the first quarter of this year having been greater than the fall in prices, it is evident that the volume of trade is still shrinking.

It is true that here and there there has been an improvement. Thus, if one may judge trade by the figures for employment, in Great Britain this year there has been a change for the better. The improvement in employment, which has been recorded month by month since January last, was continued at an accelerated rate last month. At the end of that period 372,000 more insured persons were employed. During the last four months the number of registered unemployed has declined by 320,000 to a total of 2,592,876. This total is still formidable, but it is encouraging to learn that the seasonal spring revival of trade has already lasted two months longer this year than it did last year. Indeed, in May of this year every important branch of industry in Great Britain was doing better in that month than in many preceding months.

But, local improvement apart, the main problem of restoring (Continued on next column).

CONSULAR APPOINTMENTS

It is announced in the Gazette that Senor Trinidad Eugenio Lacayo, Honorary Nicaraguan Consul in Hong Kong, has resumed charge of the Nicaraguan Consulate on July 10.

H.E. the Governor has also recognised provisionally Senor Lacayo as Honorary Consul for Mexico and the Republic of San Salvador in Hong Kong and Herr H. Gipperich as Consul for Germany in Hong Kong.

world trade remains, and this the Conference met to consider with a view to the welfare of all. To guide it in its deliberations a Preparatory Commission of Experts met at Geneva and drew up certain conclusions. These, in brief, were:—(1) A monetary and credit policy based on the gold standard and accepted by all nations; (2) the raising of prices; (3) the resumption of the free movement of capital; (4) the modification of trade restrictions; (5) a tariff truce to allow the discussion of a more harmonious tariff and treaty policy the world over; and (6) a world organisation of production and trade.

These conclusions, it may be added, received the endorsement of the Bank of International Settlements at its June meeting. What, broadly speaking, was the policy that the British Government urged on the Conference. This Government, it should be remarked, has already put into effect No. 5 of the above programme by arranging a tariff truce for the duration of the Conference with about half-a-dozen of the chief industrial countries. For a further indication of the ideas of the British Government one must turn to a speech of Mr. Neville Chamberlain, in which the Chancellor of the Exchequer imparted to the House of Commons the principles that were to guide, but not bind, the Government at the Conference.

The first objective, Mr. Chamberlain thought, was the raising and maintenance of price levels. This end could not be achieved by monetary action alone. There had to be adjustment of production to consumption. While the main object here was to increase consumption, it would be folly, he thought, to allow production to proceed unchecked and unregulated. Next, Mr. Chamberlain hoped that there would be agreement that would lead to a stable international monetary standard. Provided certain conditions were observed, the gold standard was the only one which could inspire confidence. But before there could be a return to gold there must be safeguards against such defects which had caused many nations, including Great Britain, to abandon the gold basis.

Finally, there was the subject of the abnormal barriers to trade. In this connection he referred to the control of the exchange now practised by about 40 countries. This, he pointed out, could not be removed without a prior removal of the causes which created them. So far as tariffs were concerned (and this is, of course, an interesting point in view of Great Britain's recent adoption of tariffs) there was no inconsistency between British policy and a desire for general tariff reduction. British policy was not for the erection of prohibitive tariffs. Creditor nations, he said, must realise that commercial debts could only be paid in goods and services, and that, unless the nations were prepared to take goods and services, they could not expect to have these debts paid.

These were some of the objectives of the Conference. They have not been achieved. The statesmen of the world know a little more of other people's problems, but they have come to the conclusion that the best course, the wise and the only practical and businesslike course, is to look after your own interests, and let the devil take the rest!

"Did you peel that apple before eating it, as I told you?"

"Yes, father."

"What did you do with the peeling?"

"I ate it after I finished the apple."

New Steel Process.

According to a message from Detroit, "non-dendritic" steel, made by a process which authoritative observers hail as one of two revolutionary methods introduced in the industry in the last 48 years, is to become a commercial product in a few months. Messrs. H. M. Naugle and A. J. Townsend, who invented the continuous strip-sheet rolling mill together, are also inventors of the new method. After five years of experimentation a new plant is being built at Detroit. Among features of the new process are that steel blooms are for the first time cast in a rotary mold employing high centrifugal force; no pig iron or ore is used, but 100 per cent. charge of scrap steel, and a number of conventional operations, such as ingot casting and bloom mill rolling, are eliminated.

Wimbledon at Highgate.

London, June 19.—The tennis tournaments given each year by Sir Arthur and Lady Crofield at their Highgate home, overlooking Ken Wood, are famous for Lady Crofield has an uncanny knack of persuading the most distinguished players to come to the aid of the year's good cause. There are two good causes to benefit this year, an infant welfare centre and a North London Scouts troop, and as Princess Alice is president of the latter she is attending the tournament tomorrow afternoon with Lord Atholone.

The three greatest women players will be there—Mrs. Wills Moody, Mrs. Lambert Chambers, and, most exciting for players and spectators alike, Miss Suzanne Lenglen. It will be the first time Miss Lenglen, who is now a professional player, has played on an English court for seven years, so the infants and Scouts should feel grateful for her appearance. Among other players in the long list for the exhibition games are Frl. Aussem, Mrs. Godfre, Miss Peggy Scriven, H. W. Austin, and H. Cochet.

The Japanese Royal Family.

Tokyo.—It has been announced that court physicians believed the Japanese empress might be coming to a mother again in a few months, officials indicating the baby was expected about January. On the advice of physicians, the empress shortly is going to Hama to spend the summer quietly at the imperial villa on the seashore there.

Emperor Hirohito and the empress still lack a son to inherit the throne, and for this reason the court and nation have long been hoping for the birth of a male child.

Married to the Princess Nagako Kuni in 1924 when he was regent, Emperor Hirohito is the father of three living children, while another died. The latest child, Princess Atsuko, was born March 7, 1931.

The heir presumptive is Prince Yasuhiro Chichibu, the emperor's brother.

No Gold Coinage in Future.

Gold coins are never to reappear in Great Britain.

Sir Robert Johnson, Deputy Master and Comptroller of the Royal Mint, speaking at a luncheon of the British Luncheon Club in the City, recently said:

"So far as the Royal Mint is concerned gold coinage as currency is for ever dead. After having struck at the Royal Mint and its branches in the Dominions something well over one thousand million sovereigns, we feel we have well earned our rest."

Sir Robert said that in 1620 the Government reduced the silver content of the silver coinage from 923 parts per 1,000 to 500 parts.

"The result is all these dirty coins you see to-day," he added. "The thin covering of fine silver wears off, and leaves a dirty patch on the King's cheek. The new silver coins have a small percentage of zinc and nickel, which makes them wear the same colour all through."

As a result of this the Royal Mint was now making the coinage for all Europe, except Germany and France.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. J. A. Alexander and Miss Tucker.

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, June 29.

A marriage has been arranged and will take place very quietly in London on July 8, between John Alexis Alexander, H.B.M. Consular Service, China, second son of Lieutenant Colonel C. H. Alexander, late 38th Jacob's Horse, and Donna Lyta Alexander, of Bolton House, 234, Fulham Road, S.W. 10, and grandson of the Contessa della Cerda, and Stella, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Naval Patrol For Bias Bay

3 GUNBOATS DETAILED FOR DUTY

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, July 16.

With pirates renewing their activities in the vicinity of Bias Bay, the Canton Naval Patrol has organised a special marine unit to be stationed in the barracks overlooking the Bay which was once the stronghold of buccanniers.

Three gunboats will be sent to those waters for patrol duty in co-operation with the marines. This unit was recruited from the special guards from the garrison post at a small village named Ha Chung, about eight miles from the coast.

Some Chinese bluejackets and guards have been stationed along Bias Bay and Miao Bay under Lieut.-Comdr. Tsai Teng Hui of the Canton navy. While this force has done good work in clearing away the unruly elements, the naval authorities here have considered it necessary to have a permanent detachment at Bias Bay.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION

Canton, July 15.

To promote commercial aviation in Kwangtung, General Chen Tsai Tong has ordered the School of Aviation attached to the air force to offer courses in commercial aviation starting next autumn.

Brigadier-General Hu Han Hsien, head of the aviation school, is preparing a curriculum.

Some time ago the Kwangtung Provincial Government organized a committee for the promotion of commercial aviation, but very little has been done owing to the lack of experts and funds. ITALIAN AIR ARMADA REACHES CHICAGO

1,000,000 People Welcome Visitors

6,065 MILES IN FORTY-SEVEN AND A HALF HOURS

Chicago, July 16.

All machines of the Italian Air Armada landed by 12.16 a.m. British Summer Time, having completed the flight from Montreal in under eight hours.

From a cloudless sky the sun glinted on their wings, and a light breeze ruffled the surface of the lake as the machines alighted in groups of three.

Gen. Balbo scrambled out first and raised his arm in a Fascist salute, whereupon the crowds, estimated to number a million and which lined the water's edge cheered wildly.

The machines were accompanied from the United States frontier by forty-two American machines, while General Rooso, the Italian Ambassador to Washington, was a passenger in Gen. Balbo's machine from Montreal.

PRINCES AT FORMAL WELCOME

Forty-seven and a half hours was the total flying time for the 6,065 miles from Orbetello to Chicago.

After having had baths and a change of clothes, the crews marched to Soldiers' Field where a crowd of 100,000 assembled for a formal welcome by the Princes Rospigliosi and Potenziari, the Major of Chicago and the Governor of Illinois.

Rome in Cheerful Mood.

Rome, July 16.

The whole city gathered in the streets and cafes to await news of the arrival of Gen. Balbo which was greeted with wild cheering, blowing of whistles and torchlight processions. The same thing happened in most cities in Italy and the Pope was one of the most interested enquirers and followed the progress of the flight on a map outside his study. His Holiness cabled Cardinal Mundelein, the Archbishop of Chicago, and requested him to convey the Apostolic blessing on Gen. Balbo also his good wishes.

The Last "Leg."

Montreal, July 15.

After a stay of 15 hours in Montreal for refuelling and overhauling of their planes, the members of the Italian Air Armada took off by the St. Lawrence River from the St. Hubert air port for Chicago, at 10.14 a.m. (Eastern Standard Time), on the last hop of their Rome-Chicago flight.

Chicago, July 16.

The flagship of the Italian Air Armada landed at midnight, British Summer Time.

LONDON, July 15.

The usual Saturday morning calm prevailed at the World Economic Conference headquarters to-day. No meetings were held.

The only occurrence to cause a ripple of interest was the letter issued by Dr. Colijn, of Holland, Chairman of the Economic Commission, requesting that the final reports of the Sub-Commission be lodged by July 21, for the winding up of the proceedings and inviting it to express its opinion on the desirability of continuing discussions later.

The Foreign Exchange Market is equally serene, only the ordinary commercial business passing.

United States dollars moved between the narrow limits of 4.78 and 4.77 1/8, closing at the latter figure.

Gold currencies, in relation to sterling, were quietly steady.

Conference to Work at Geneva.

LONDON, July 15.

The date of the reassembly of the World Economic Conference is open to conjecture, but the favourite theory is that the framework committees will return to Geneva with the Secretariat and in the absence of a definite solution to the stabilisation problem by autumn, advantage will be taken of the presence of the World Delegates of the League Assembly to hold a meeting and set seal on such agreements, notably regarding various commodities, as may have been reached.

The World Economic Conference Sub-Commissions and Committees have been asked to conclude their work not later than July 21. It is anticipated that the final plenary meeting of the Conference, to decide its future, will be held on July 23 or 27.

Senator Key Pittman in an interview with Reuter on the subject of Thursday's silver meeting, explained that the basis of the Dutch objection was that there were points in the resolution which the Dutch felt might imperil their silver payments. He was sure the necessary changes could be made in the resolution on conferring with the Dutch delegate, M. Beyen.

International Bank Co-Operation.

LONDON, July 15.

Three resolutions have been adopted by the World Economic Conference Sub-Commission on permanent measures for the re-establishment of an international monetary standard.

The first deals with the provision of an international gold standard.

The second declares that the Bank of International Settlements should play an increasingly important part in the co-operation of central banks, not only by improving contact, but also, as an instrument for common action.

The third emphasises that importance of adapting central banks of certain agricultural countries to the special economic conditions of those countries.

There was general surprise when the Americans spoke against neither the first or second of the resolutions.

Freeing Trade Restrictions.

LONDON, July 15.

The United States, Japan, the Netherlands and Norway are the only Governments still remaining parties to the International Convention for the abolition of imports and exports prohibitions and restrictions, stated the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Captain Anthony Eden, in the House of Commons yesterday.

All other signatories had attached conditions to their ratifications, which were unfulfilled.

LONDON, July 15. There were no meetings to-day of Conference Committees, but work will be continued on Monday when the drafting committees of the sub-commission on subsidies and shipping.

A statement issued by the Quai D'Orsay states that they have received no information of the reported occupation of the Coral Islands, and that they are making enquiries.

SABOTAGE ON C.E.R.

Manchukuo Blame Soviet Officials

Harbin, July 16.

The "Harbin Times" says that Manchukuo C.E.R. Officials have documentary proof that members of the Komintern are extremely active on all railway settlements where responsible Soviet Komintern members dictate their policy to C.E.R. employees, resulting in malicious sabotage.

DISPUTE OVER C.E.R.

FREIGHT HELD UP AT POGRANITCHNAVA

Moscow, July 15.

THE attempts to obtain the exchange of freight-cars between the Ussuri Railway and the Chinese Eastern Railway at Pogranitchnava, appear to be fruitless.

The Chairman of the Administrative Board of the C.E.R., Mr. Li Shao-gen, has informed the foreign Consuls who attempted to obtain settlement from him, that the Government of Manchukuo will not agree to an exchange of cars, many of which have been held up at Pogranitchnava ever since the suspension of through traffic between the C.E.R. and the Ussuri Railway lines.

As a partial solution, however, Mr. Li Shao-gen proposed that the goods belonging to foreign exporters should be returned to Harbin by the C.E.R. free of charge. They could then be sent to Dairen.

Soviet Officials May Be Removed.

HARBIN, July 15.

According to the Harbin Times Mr. Li Shao-gen has received instructions from the Ministry of Communications at Hsinking to remove Soviet employees of the Chinese Eastern Railway if they continue to maintain their previous sabotage policy which is resulting in Chinese Eastern Railway losses and preventing essential reforms.

JAPAN ACCEPTS SILVER RESOLUTION

No Support For Sugar Proposals

Tokyo, July 15.

COUNT Uchida, the Japanese Foreign Minister, to-day instructed the Japanese delegation to the World Economic Conference, in London, to accept the silver resolution, but to refuse the sugar resolution on the ground that Japan is not an important factor in the sugar trade.

THE MUTINOUS CRUISERS

Still Worrying Nanking

STATEMENT BY CAPTAIN KWAN CHI CHOW

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, July 16.

The Ministry of Navy is still anxious to take back the Hai Chi, Hai Shen and Shao Ho which have joined the Canton navy and has ordered the Nanking gunboats Yai Sen and Hai Yung to prevent the three gunboats Yung Hsiang, Chu Yu and Hai Ou from coming to Canton, it was learned here to-day.

For this purpose the Nanking new cruiser Ning Hai, which returned to Shanghai yesterday, is replaced by the Hai Chau which will assist the Yai Sen and Hai Yung in combating the South China seas for the three mutinous gunboats. The Hai Chau was said to have left Shanghai for the South on July 13.

Formal appointments of the officers of the three Whampoa cruisers by the South-west Political Council will be made at its regular meeting on next Tuesday, July 18. Under the new appointment, nearly all the naval officers will retain their present posts.

Captain Kwan Chi Chow, commanding the Hai Shen, stated that it would be futile for Admiral Chen Shao Kuan, Minister of Navy, to bring about their return to Nanking, pointing out that warships are for the coastal defence of China and that from this viewpoint it would be immaterial whether they should remain in the South or at Nanking. Capt. Kwan added that the three cruisers are serving the country better by remaining where they are now.

TO REMAIN WITH CANTON SQUADRON

Canton, July 15.

The three Nanking gunboats Ning Hai, Yai Sen and Hai Yung are said to have left Kwangtung waters in the direction of Fukien. Fishermen in the vicinity of Macao have lost trace of these warships.

While the exact whereabouts of the three cruisers are shrouded in mystery, it is reliably reported that the Nanking vessels are going to Amoy to coal. These ships attempted to persuade the Hai Chi, Hai Shen and Shao Ho to return North, but found it impossible to change the minds of the naval officers.

Appropriations for the support of three cruisers have been fixed by the military authorities. Interviewed by Press representatives, Captain Chang Chin Yu, chief of staff of the Whampoa squadron, stated that Rear-Admiral Keung Sai Yuen has submitted a list of officers and men to the South-west Political Council.

Captain Chang said that the three cruisers will remain anchored off Whampoa for the time being. As regards the three gunboats Yung Hsiang, Chu Yu and Hai Ou, which were said to be proceeding to Canton, he intimated that these gunboats had no intention of coming South.

Vice-Admiral Chang Chi Ying, head of the Canton naval patrol, has inspected the ships and delivered an inspiring address to the officers and ratings.

NING HAI AT SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, July 15.

THE Nanking cruiser, Ninghai, which proceeded to the South early last week, and which made a very brief stay in Hong Kong waters, returned to Shanghai at 10 o'clock this morning. The other two cruisers, the Hai Yung and Yai Sen, which made the southern journey together with the Ning Hai, have not yet been sighted.

The movements of the three Nanking cruisers, had been shrouded in mystery since the vessels left Hong Kong.

RECAPTURE OF DOLONOR

Canton Praises Gen. Feng Yu Hsiang

CRUSHING BLOW TO ENEMY FORCES

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, July 16.

General Feng Yu Hsiang, leader of the People's Anti-Japanese Allied Army, was warmly commended by the South-west Political Council for the capture of Dolonor, an important and strategic town in Central Chahar province.

Congratulating General Feng's victory over the Japanese-Manchukuo forces, the telegram despatched yesterday by the South-west Political Council declared that "certain traitors have no plans whatever for the recovery of invaded territory, but on the other hand they are exerting every effort to undermine and breakdown patriotic movements to save the country."

"Notwithstanding such adverse circumstances, you have dealt a crushing defeat to the enemy," the message continued. "Your merits are high in the annals of the Party and Nation by this victory against overwhelming odds. We trust you will continue your good work and assure you of our wholehearted support."

Press reports state that thousands of telegrams from every part of the country are pouring into Kalgan, Feng's headquarters, lauding him for his military success. It is stated, however, that the Japanese are despatching 20,000 soldiers to recapture Dolonor.

THE FUTURE OF CHINA

To Be Discussed In Paris

LONDON, July 15.

ENORMOUS possibilities for the future of China are stated to be involved at the special meeting of the League Council Committee on Technical Co-operation in China, to be held in Paris on Tuesday next and at which several important League officials now in London, will attend.

The so-called Japanese menace is alleged to have stimulated the interests of certain Powers in developing China in a most liberal manner and for seeking definite machinery before maintaining the Open Door policy.

It is contemplated that the Committee will form a permanent liaison body to maintain contact between China and the League, so that any demands for co-operation and system may be organised promptly.

FOUR POWER PACT SIGNED

Agreement Concluded At Rome

Rome, July 15.

The Four-Power Pact was signed here to-day by Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy.

[The following is the summary of the Four Power Pact:—

The preamble declares that the principal aim of the Pact is to give more effect to the procedure established by the League Covenant, with proviso decisions of the four Powers not to infringe the rights of other States.

Under Article One, Britain, France, Italy and Germany agree to collaborate.

Article Two stipulates for the exchange of views, particularly in view of applying the provisions of the League Covenant, especially Article 10, dealing with the maintenance of territorial status quo, Article 18, dealing with sanctions in the case of aggression and Article 19, dealing with the revision of Treaties.

Article Three of the Pact lays down that in the case of failure of the Disarmament Conference, the four Powers consult to find a solution for the unsolved problems.

Article Four states that the four Powers may likewise consider together, economic questions in which they have common interest in Europe.

Article Five fixes the duration of the Pact to 10 years, renewable for a further 10 years, unless notice is given at the end of the eighth year.]

U.S. BI-LATERAL TARIFFS

GANDHI'S NEW SCHEME

REJECTED BY CONGRESS PARTY

POONA, July 15.

AFTER rejecting, by a big majority, a resolution urging the unconditional abandonment of the Civil Disobedience campaign, the Conference of the Congress Party passed, by an overwhelmingly majority, a resolution in favour of calling off the Civil Disobedience campaign provided an honourable settlement is reached between the Viceroy and Mahatma Gandhi.

The Conference had previously thrown out the resolution in favour of Mahatma Gandhi's scheme for "non-violent non-cooperation."

HOME CRICKET RESULTS

MID-WEEK PROGRAMME SPOILT BY RAIN

PATAUDI SCORES A DOUBLE-CENTURY: EIGHT OTHER PLAYERS GET HUNDREDS

LONDON, July 14. The mid-week cricket programme was seriously interfered with by rain with the result that all the matches, except that between Yorkshire and Essex which was reported earlier, were decided on the first innings.

As a result of the rainfall, the wickets on most grounds were not conducive to bright batting. Nevertheless, one batsman passed the two hundred mark, eight got into three figures while one was decidedly unfortunate that he missed his century by the narrow margin of four runs.

The most notable batting was:

Batting	Runs
Pataudi (Worcester) r.	224
Kent
Hammond (Gloucester) r.	140
Notts (Middlesex) r.	132
Henderson (Gloucester) r.	132

Bowling.
Essex 8 for 47
Kent 9 for 44
Jackson (Worcester) 8 for 57
Clark (Northants) 7 for 78
Warwick (Gloucester) 6 for 52
Wensley (Sussex) 5 for 35
Holmes (Eton) 4 for 26

Kent had an extremely lucky escape from defeat when they met Worcester on the latter's ground. The home batsmen were in dazzling form. The Nawab of Pataudi, who learnt his cricket in the Kent nursery under the tuition of Frank Woolley, made light of the bowling of Freeman and Co., hitting up 224 and keeping his wicket intact until the innings was closed at 477 for 2. Gibbons contributed 124 and Nichol 109 not out.

Only rain saved the hop county. In their first visit to the wicket they only managed 147, finding Jackson, who captured 8 for 57, almost unplayable. Following on they lost a further five wickets for 97 runs. Then came the rain.

Hammond Again.
Notts too were in rather a bad way against Gloucester, but were helped by the weather which cut play short. Another century by Hammond saw Gloucester total 268 and in response Notts scored 108 and were forced to follow on. Their second attempt resulted in 141 for 4 wickets and they were still 118 runs in arrears when rain prevented further play.

A Sporting Declaration.
Sussex tried valiantly to force the issue against Hampshire, making a sporting second innings declaration of 81 for 0. This left Hampshire to score 230 to win and when stumps were drawn they had made 147 for 3.

The remainder of the matches were quite featureless. The annual Harrow v. Eton game started at Lord's and saw an interesting and even day's play. Harrow, thanks chiefly to Pawle, who in scoring 56 was unlucky to miss his century, compiled 237. Holmes did some clever bowling for Eton, sending four men back for 28 runs. Eton batted well under difficult conditions and at the close had put 91 on the board for the loss of three wickets.

The scores of the matches were as follows:

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

Northants took first innings points from Warwickshire at Birmingham.

Warwick 108 (Clark 7 for 70) 27 for no wicket.

Northants 228 for 5 dec. (Timms 102 not out).

Gloucester took first innings from Notts at Bristol.

Gloucester 268 (Hammond 140) Notts 108 (Parker 6 for 62) 141 for 4 wickets.

Sussex took first innings points from Hampshire at Portsmouth.

Sussex 227 and 81 for 0 dec. Hampshire 139 (Wensley 5 for 23) and 147 for 2.

Glamorgan drew with Middlesex at Swansea.

Middlesex 358 (Lee 106, Henderson 100) Glamorgan 135 for 3.

Worcester took first innings points from Kent at Worcester.

Worcester 477 for 2 dec. (Gibbons 124, Nawab of Pataudi 224 not out, Nichol 100 not out).

Kent 147 (Jackson 8 for 57) 97 for 5 wickets.

Surrey took first innings points from Somerset at Bath.

Surrey 232 for 8 dec. and 47 for 5.

Somerset 215 (E. F. Longrigg 124).

FRIENDLY MATCH.

The West Indies drew with Lancashire at Manchester.

West Indies 174 for 7 dec. Lancashire 39 for 2.

ETON AND HARROW DRAW

LONDON, July 10. The annual match between Eton and Harrow which, as usual, was played at Lord's ended in a draw.

Eton made 195, Duveen taking 5 wickets for 42 runs.

Harrow replied with 146 for 6 (declared) and when Eton went in again they had put together 84 for 4 when stumps were drawn.

SOUTH CHINA WIN CHAMPIONSHIP

By virtue of a win over the U.S. Navy at Caroline Hill on Saturday, South China have retained the baseball championship for another year. The game was played before a crowd of some two hundred people (mostly Chinese) and the only exciting incident throughout the game happened at the end of the third innings when Storie chased T. Chan down the "hot corner" and tagged him out.

There was no score for the first two innings but when the Chinese went up to bat for the third time, they scored three runs. The sailors rallied in the very next innings and scored two but that proved all they could get while South China went on to score another four runs.

Yesterday's Matches.

There were two matches yesterday but these were comparatively dull affairs and in the opening one, a league encounter between the U.S. Navy and the Hong Kong Baseball Club, the former won by 7 runs to 1.

This was followed by an exhibition game between South China and Canton but the latter were hopelessly outplayed, the S.C.A.A. aggregation scoring 14 runs without any reply.

DAVIS CUP TENNIS

Britain To Meet America

LONDON, July 15. Britain qualified to meet America in the Inter-Zone Final of the Davis Cup to-day when Bunny Austin beat Vivian McGrath, the 17-year-old Australian player, by 6-4, 7-5, 6-3 at Wimbledon.

The winners of the Anglo-American clash, which will be staged in Paris on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, will meet France in the Challenge Round in Paris next week.

McGrath led 4-1 in the first set, sometimes leaving Austin standing with fast forehand drives and his two-handed backhanders.

Austin, however, played inspired tennis at this period, driving with wonderful length and rhythm and coming up to volley frequently.

He was in devastating form and reeled off game after game to secure the set at 6-4.

McGrath led 2-0, 3-1 and 4-2 in the second set, but Austin levelled at 4-4, and, winning McGrath's service, he led 5-4. McGrath, however, responded well and 5-all was called.

Then McGrath made a series of mistakes on his forehand to drop the set at 7-5.

Austin's ground shots on the forehand worried the Australian in the third set.

McGrath tried drop shots, but was outwitted by Austin, who adopted similar tactics with success.—Reuter.

Crawford beat Lee 8-6, 7-5, 6-4. Lee replaced Perry who injured his shoulder muscle which, however, will not prevent Perry from playing in the inter-zone final.

Crawford was at his best and whipped fore hand shots from the corners unerringly. He always had Lee guessing, and although the Englishman was by no means poor with his ground shots he was so frequently out of position that Crawford only had to maintain accuracy for victory.—Reuter.

B. D. Barnes, Dr. Gibson, M. Spurway, M. E. Huntingdon, G. P. N. Morris, T. A. Baldock and H. W. Hoskyns, did not bat.

Babe Ruth Injures His Arm

NEW YORK, July 14. BOTH the New York Giants and Yankees are beginning to firmly re-establish themselves at the head of the Major Baseball League.

The Giants by beating St. Louis; Washington Senators losing to Chicago who blanked them out and the Yankees making hay at the expense of St. Louis, have been of considerable assistance to the two New York outfits.

Babe Ruth hurt his right arm against St. Louis to-day and had to retire in the sixth inning.

WATER POLO LEAGUE

GAMES PLAYED AT NORTH POINT

Two league games of water polo were played on Saturday at North Point, in the first of which the Young Companions' Aquatic Association beat the University by three goals to nil while in the second game the Chinese Civil Servants beat the Chinese Bathing Club by 5 to nil.

The University lost many promising chances when they failed to score in the first half. Their goalkeeper damaged his hand trying to save a shot but in spite of that put in some excellent work.

It was in the second half that the Young Companions' team asserted their superiority and won much as they liked. They scored three times without any reply from the University.

In the second game the Chinese Bathing Club were outclassed. Lau Pun Sin scored a single goal for the Civil Servants in the first half, but it was in the second that the winners really began to show their superiority and they got through the C.B.C. defence on no fewer than four occasions.

BOWLS SURPRISE FOR POLICE

Lose to Recreio after Leading 17-4

SPEY ROYAL GAMES

The biggest sensation of the year in lawn bowls circles was the defeat yesterday of the Police R.C. by the Club de Recreio in the Spey Royal Cup game which was played on the Craigengower Green.

The Recreio had two men on the sick list and fielded a comparatively weak team. Luz skipped for the Portuguese side, but in the initial stages of the game, the Police overwhelmed their opponents.

Hollands, who skipped the Police played an excellent game in the first twelve head. The Police opened their account in the first head by scoring two. The Recreio levelled up in the second head. Thereafter the Police scored in five consecutive heads bringing the score up to 14-2 in their favour.

This was possible because of a five scored in the fifth head. The Recreio scored a 3 in the 8th head to bring the score to 18-4, but the Police by scoring a single in the ninth head took their lead up to 17-4. Here Recreio scored a four to bring the score to 17-8 and a further single in the twelfth head gave them 17-9 just before the tea interval.

They say in cricket circles that tea often proves a good change bowler. This must be equally true in lawn bowls, for after the tea, the Police team went to pieces.

With the score at 17-9 in their favour they added one more in the thirteenth head to make it 18-9.

The position looked hopeless for Recreio but they scored in four consecutive heads, 3, 3, 4 and 3, to get the lead at 20-18. Luz was now playing a marvellous game, controlling his woods beautifully, while Hollands seemed to be upset by the result. The Recreio No. 1 layed beautifully and was well backed up by their middle men. In the 18th head, the Police took a single to find themselves still one point in arrears. The game looked very open with three more heads to go, but Luz took seven points in those three heads, to finish up winner by 27-19.

The game was one of the most sensational seen in this year's tournament, and the Recreio players are to be congratulated on their plucky display. At the same time one cannot help feeling sorry for the losers, who appeared, at the tea interval to have had the game well in hand.

The players were as follows:—

OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP EVENTS

V.R.C. ARRANGEMENTS

At a General Committee Meeting of the V.R.C. held on July 14 it was decided to hold the Annual Open Colony's Championships in all the events competed for in former years and, though the exact dates have not been definitely settled on, it will be somewhere around the end of the swimming season, in order to allow the various Aquatic Clubs to decide their own Championships and enable them to send official representatives.

As in previous years, these Championships will be open to the whole Colony and anyone may enter, whether he represents a Club or as an individual.

The various Championships events are given below, with the present title-holders and times and, as the 50 yards Free style is now recognised as an event for Interport competition, the Committee are considering the inclusion of this distance in the programme.

Secretaries of Clubs desiring further information are invited to communicate with the Hon. Secretary of the V.R.C. who will gladly supply same.

1932-33 Season Championships:
100 yds. Free Style.—S. V. Gittins (V.R.C.). Time: 50 3/5 sec.

220 yds. Free Style.—L. Roza Pereira (V.R.C.). Time: 2m. 37 3/5 sec.

440 yds. Free Style.—L. Roza Pereira (V.R.C.). Time: 6m. 59 1/5 sec.

880 yds. Free style.—L. Roza Pereira (V.R.C.). Time: 12m. 18 3/5 sec.

100 yds. Back Stroke.—L. Roza Pereira (V.R.C.). Time: 74 1/5 sec.

SOME KOWLOON GROUSES

Typhoons And School Holidays: More Street Lights Needed: The 'Bus Service: Open Air Concerts

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

Just by way of a change, I am going to make a departure from my usual practice and will cover a few subjects in this issue instead of the usual long and boring article I have been in the habit of inflicting on my unoffending readers daily. It has been suggested that it would be a good idea to start a column in this supplement confined to "kicks and suggestions" from Kowloon residents, but as I cannot manufacture all the necessary kicks and suggestions required to fill this column, I must invite readers to send in contributions, addressed to the "Kowloon Correspondent," c/o this paper.

To give this proposed weekly column a send off, I collected a few "kicks" and the first one is from a "Kowloon Mother" who wishes to know why some of the schools are in the habit of sending the children home on any morning or afternoon as the case may be, when it happens to rain and blow a little. This lady tells me that she sent her children to school on the day of the last threatened typhoon, and to her surprise, the children returned after an absence of half-an-hour and said that "teacher told us to come home as we are going to have a typhoon!"

On occasions like these, would it not be better if the children were detained at school unless the typhoon is really close? Most of them are taken to school by their mothers or parents in rickshaws, buses or even motor-cars and as soon as school is reached, the parents or amahs depart. The result is that when the children are sent home again, they get wet through and as there are also other points against children being out in the rain alone, it is to be hoped that the schools in general will meet the parents as far as possible in this matter. Perhaps the best rule would be clear instructions to parents not to send their children to school when anything above No. 1 signal is hoisted.

BADLY LIT ROADS

The casual visitor to Kowloon usually gathers the impression that the peninsula is a "superior" place to the island in most respects, but those who live in the peninsula, although they feel that Kowloon is an excellent place, have a lot of complaints to make. One of the latest I heard is that the roads in Kowloon are very poorly lit at night. To say that this is true in the case of Nathan Road and the other principal thoroughfares would be nothing short of falsehood, but there are places which would be much better off with a few more lamp posts. To my mind the clearest example is that section of Waterloo Road near the Dogs' Home. There are other places similarly neglected but they are too numerous to mention. Here indeed, is a problem which the Kowloon Residents' Association might tackle.

THE BUS SERVICE

Reference was made in these columns sometime ago regarding the bus service to Kowloon Tong and Homantin, and although I understand that there has been an improvement in this route since the new Company took over, there is a lot more that could be done. It is rather hard to expect a new Company to give attention to all complaints that are being made, but it should not be hard to place a few more buses on a route to such popular residential quarters as Kowloon Tong and Homantin, especially during the rush hours.

BAND CONCERTS

The band concerts which were such a feature in the Kowloon social calendar some years back have, to all intents and purposes, vanished. We have some really excellent bands in the Colony yet no effort is made to give the lovers of these concerts the benefit of their presence.

If the Government do not care to run these concerts, perhaps some enterprising private concern might do so. At present no use is being made of the piece of land on which the exhibition stalls in the Empress Fair were erected. Cannot arrangements be made to have a band stand and enclosure erected there? Some little time ago, we had the open-air miniature golf-course on this site and it was surprising how many people gathered there in the evenings not so much for a game as to be out in the open. Perhaps the management of the Peninsula Hotel might find it "expedient and wise" to give the question of band concerts their serious consideration? They would be just the people to run such a show, and it would be no trouble for them to serve refreshments during these concerts.

PRINCE FLIES IN A THUNDERSTORM

NORWICH AIR PORT OPENED

(Special Air-Mail Service)

NORWICH, June 29.
The Prince of Wales arrived here by aeroplane during a thunderstorm just after noon to-day.

His Royal Highness, who came to open Norwich's new municipal aerodrome, was flying in his D.H. "Dragon" Moth, piloted by Flight-Lieut. E. H. Fielden. He was accompanied by his Equerry, Col. Legh.

The pilot had made a detour to avoid the worst of the storm, but forked lightning was still flashing within the eastern border of the aerodrome, and there was heavy thunder.

After formally opening the aerodrome and inspecting the new premises of the Norfolk and Norwich Aero Club, the Prince again boarded his aeroplane, which then set out for King's Lynn, where he had a further engagement. It was still raining, and the sky was overcast by heavy thunderclouds. Replying to an address of wel-

BETTING TAX CUT

ORDINANCE TO BE AMENDED.

A draft Bill of an Ordinance to amend the Betting Duty Ordinance of 1931, to come into force on September 1, is published in the Government Gazette.

The amendment reduces the duty on totalisator or pari-mutuel bets, authorised under the principal Ordinance, from 3 per cent. to 2 1/2 per cent.

come by the Lord Mayor of Norwich (Ald. H. M. Holmes), his Royal Highness said he spoke "as one who looks upon flying as a main means of transport nowadays." He hoped that other municipalities would follow the example of Norwich in providing landing facilities, the absence of which was holding up the development of air transport.

"Even if in these hard times it is not possible to have as elaborate an establishment as yours," he said, "a start could be made at a comparatively low cost by others, with a landing field, wind indicator and refueling facilities. I congratulate you in Norwich on what you have here, and of the splendid lead you have given to others."

CHAPTER VII.

"What's the Commander looking up at the sky for?" asked MacDougal of Knowlton. The latter saw at once that Toler was listening, rather than looking, and he strained his own ears. A faint humming became audible.

"Airplanes!" shouted Knowlton, as five Austrian scout airplanes appeared out of a high fog from the direction of Damazzo. Toler had seen them too. He moved rapidly to the conning tower fairwater side, about the hatch, and pulled on the handle of the submarine's siren.

Three times its siren wailed over the turbulent waters after Walters and his crew in the dinghy.

Knowlton saw the men in the dinghy, as it was carried up on the crest of a wave, hold their oars in the water, checking the boat's forward speed, and knew that Brick was turning about to return to the submarine.

"Brick! Brick! Brick!" Knowlton murmured to himself, as though encouraging a man in a race. Mingled with it was the supplication of a prayer. He understood only too well the danger from those airplanes. They might have—probably did have—bombs, one of which, falling near the dinghy, would upset it, forcing the submarine to dive and leave the men struggling in the water.

Even while he watched, Commander Toler came quickly up to him. "Knowlton, try to keep the planes off the dinghy with the machine gun. We'll fight it out if they haven't any bombs."

"I'll hold 'em off," said Knowlton, with grim determination, as Toler rushed away.

Brick Walters was yelling like mad to his men, gesticulating toward the approaching airplanes.

"Dig in, Brick! Dig in! We're holding her for you!"

The five Austrian planes were now almost directly above the submarine, forming a "squirrel cage."

Suddenly the first plane went into a power dive, her struts screaming, her motor howling in the headlong descent.

"Here she comes!" sung out MacDougal.

"Let him have it!" commanded Knowlton, shortly.

The dropping plane roared loudly, rattling death from its machine-gun. The bullets plopped like hail upon the steel deck, flayed the water about the ship.

MacDougal held the machine-gun straight up in the air, firing at the scout plane as it seemed about to drop upon the submarine's deck. His pipe was shot out from between his clenched teeth. The sailor feeding the gun was shot through the top of the head. Blood poured over his face, and he pitched forward over the gun. A second sailor hung his body aside and took his place.

The airplane leveled off—it seemed but a few yards above the deck—and was off to complete its loop. It screamed over the dinghy spitting it with bullets. Knowlton saw one of the men in the boat drop his oar, stand up and pitch headlong into the sea.

Even as he spoke another plane darted over the dinghy and tiny geysers of water sprang up about the boat as the bullets hit the water. Knowlton saw one of the crouching figures in the boat pitch forward as the plane turned upward and came towards the submarine where the gun crew stood waiting to receive it.

One of the men, struck in the shoulder by a bullet, straightened up, walked blindly away, stepped off the edge of the submarine into the water, clawing feebly at the slippery side of the ship with his good arm. He cried out to his companions.

"Joe! Henderson! Help! Over the side! Henderson! Oh, God, make 'em hear me! Joe! Henderson! Hen—"

He clawed frantically at the side of the submarine, but slipped down into the sea, his mouth filled with water, silencing his unheard pleas for aid. One hand was seen for a moment above the water, clawing at the side of the submarine, then it, too, disappeared.

The gun pointer was hit in the leg by a bullet, as the airplane swerved upward and away. He sat down on the deck, took a package of tobacco and a cigarette paper from his pocket and began to roll a cigarette. When it was half done he stopped and rolled up his pants leg for a look at the hole drilled through his calf.

"Bad hit, Henderson?" asked Nelson.

"Naw, only a flesh wound, Mr. Nelson. Them Austrians are lousy shots, ain't they?"

Knowlton remained by the gun and began firing as another enemy plane began its roaring downward swoop. The spray from its gun chopped up the water and "pinged" loudly against the steel deck.

"Eat those!" yelled Knowlton to the swooping plane. "Come on, eat 'em!"

The plant was upon them, raking the deck with its machine-gun. The sailor feeding the submarine's gun suddenly stood up straight and started to stumble, slipped and would have slid over the side of the submarine had not MacDougal shot out his wounded hand. The man grasped it and MacDougal strained to pull the man back on deck, clenching his mouth tight as the sailor's despairing grasp awoke agonies in his injured hand. When the man was safe on board, MacDougal examined him and saw that he was suffering merely from a scalp wound.

"What you need," he said in intense disgust, "is a nursemaid."

"Aw, shut up," replied the sailor, wiping the blood out of his eyes.

Knowlton's eyes were fast on the dinghy in which his friend, Brick Walters, had taken the place of a wounded sailor and was rowing with the rest. He saw an oar jerk up in the air, then pitch over the side of the boat. The man who had been rowing leaned forward and gradually slumped down out of sight in the boat.

His attention was caught by the cry of "Bomber!" and he tore his eyes away from the dinghy to the sky. Out of the high bank of fog a great airplane could be seen bearing down upon the submarine.

Then from the forward deck he heard Captain Toler's crisp, unexcited, staccato voice ordering: "Nelson, get your men below Rig for diving."

COMMANDER OF LUSITANIA

DEATH OF CAPTAIN W. T. TURNER

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, June 29.
Capt. William Thomas Turner, who commanded the Lusitania when the giant Cunarder was sunk by a German submarine off the south of Ireland on May 7, 1915, with the loss of 1,195 passengers and crew, died on June 23 at Great Crosby, near Liverpool, at the age of 77.

Capt. Turner was born at Everton, and rose from the humble job of deck boy on a barque of 500 tons to command several of the largest British liners, and to become one of the best-known men on the North Atlantic.

Sea-going thrills came early to him, for when he was only 8, the barque Grasmere, in which he sailed from Glasgow with his father, struck a rock near Belfast, and the crew carried the passengers ashore on their backs.

After much service in windjammers, he joined the Cunard Company, and after another short spell in sailing ships he rejoined the Cunard Line for good in 1883, receiving his first command ten years later.

Atlantic Rescues.

While captain of the Mauretania, he rescued from open boats in the Atlantic Capt. Pinkham and part of the crew of the West Point, which had been abandoned, ablaze from stem to stern. For this service he received from the Liverpool Shipwreck and Humane Society an illuminated address.

His conduct on the occasion of the loss of the Lusitania was in keeping with the fine traditions of the British mercantile service.

He was on the bridge at the time his ship was struck, Lord Mersey recorded, delivering the judgment of the Board of Trade inquiry, and remained there giving orders until the ship foundered. He went down with the vessel, and was rescued by chance after having been in the water three hours.

In the opinion of Lord Mersey, he "exercised his judgment for the best. It was the judgment of a skilled and experienced man."

Capt. Turner always denied that there were guns or ammunition on board the Lusitania, as Germany alleged, but used to complain humorously that he lost an old sextant which he valued. "It is in the left-hand drawer of my desk in the ship," he said.

During the war he also commanded the Aquitania as an armed cruiser, and was in command of the Ivernia when that vessel was torpedoed in the Mediterranean while taking troops to Salonika. For his war services he was awarded the O.B.E.

stood on the threshold. Don't be too long, Tommie. She shut the door behind her. Tom, now alone, quickly rang the bell for Regan and addressed him in a sharp voice. "I'm going to town. Why? I just don't like it here, that's all. What is the idea? Tom pulled on his gloves. I'm going back to my wife Red. Tom spoke gently. Regan looked puzzled. To your what? To my wife, I said. I know now that Daisy is my true wife, and I am going to try to make everything up to her, if it's possible. What a fool not to have seen that she's the one I really love. As he walked out he drew a deep breath his thoughts already dwelling on the happiness in store with Daisy.

ANN HARDING AND LESLIE HOWARD

In "Animal Kingdom"

CHAPTER 6

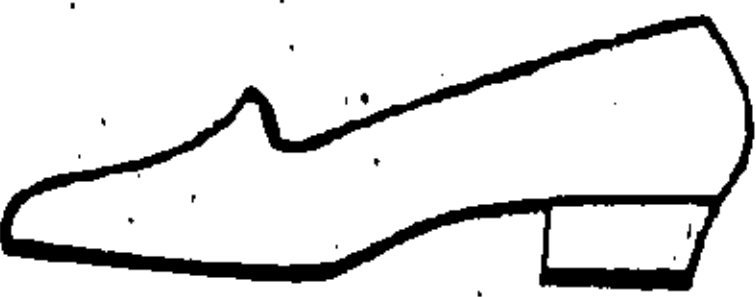

(What has happened; Tom Collier marries Cecilia Henry and ends his affair with Daisy Sage, artist. He visits Daisy subsequently, and their love rekindles. To avoid the outcome, Daisy flees. But at Tom's birthday party Daisy discerns Tom's mental confusion; he no longer cares for his work or old friends. Decided to penetrate the cause, she watches Cecilia and observes her embracing a former suitor.)

Now Go On With the Story.

Cecilia was sitting quietly in the living room when Tom entered. You're frightfully late Tom. "I stopped in at the bantam. I wanted to think—to clear my mind of the pounding machines—the vision of millions of cheap books—and Williamson's recital of the glories of the machine age." But the sale to Williamson went through, all right didn't it Tom? "Oh, yes, perfectly. Are you pleased?" Oh, Tom, aren't you? I think something's happened to my nervous system. I feel awfully light. You are famished. Come and eat. She sat on the arm of his chair. Would you like to eat in my sitting room? Yes, . . . he hesitated and then spoke slowly and deliberately. I think it's time we had a child or two. Cecilia's eyes opened wide. Oh, well, we will talk about that later. She rang for Regan to set a table in her sitting room. Then she went upstairs to get ready to retire. She had just put on a transparent gown when Tom entered. He looked about the room. Its very cosy—in fact it seems to remind me of some place. When Regan entered with some champagne Tom seemed surprised. Tom dear I thought you might feel like celebrating. A little won't hurt you. Well fill them Mr. Regan. Regan looked at him oddly, then filled the glasses and silently withdrew. Tom noticed it and laughed. The discreet withdrawal—I've seen that before too. I know—the Florentine. A private room at the Florentine. It sounds wicked. Ah, one went to Flora's to celebrate. The food was good, the waiters discreet, the wines excellent, the lady most artful. I don't care to hear anymore about it, thank you. Very well. He stared into his glass. Williamson Warren and Company have absorbed the Bass Tam Press. Like a sponge. I quashed that Tom, Cecilia was frightened at what sounded like delirium. Yes, I'm alright but C. "Little love is no love." "Meaning what?" It wasn't necessary to look your door against me last night. Why did you do it? Tom reached for her hand and held it crushing it. Why was it? Tell me instantly why it was. Cecilia spoke with difficulty. You mean—why I—why I didn't want you near me? Well you had been so consistently disagreeable, that's all. About what Regan? That's one thing. Not important? Its your father. I don't understand your reasons for not wanting us to live with him in his fine house this winter. Yes, you—to preside night after night at his deadly dinner, me to listen eternally to his delphic advice on what to do and how to live, in short to allow him to own us. Of course he is willing to pay. He always is. Lets drop it. Its only for a few months. I think to refuse his present would be extremely bad manners—just about in a class with those of your little lady friend of easy virtue. She saw she had gone too far. I'm sorry to have said that about her. Never mind. Suppose I should do as you say about father, would you like me better? There would be no more locked doors any more? Cecilia smiled coyly. "Not one ever." That sounds most inviting, and suddenly I'm beginning to see with an awful clearness—What, dear How stupid you have been! And what I am to you? . . . Yes, Cecilia brought her chair closer and sat beside him intimately. Tom looked about him incredulously. He was very much reminded of Flora Conover's place in England. It seemed to him that he was host to a pretty little . . . but what was he thinking? This was his wife. Therafter, Cecilia drank a good deal and Tom watched her closely. I like you now Tom. But you aren't taking any wine? Oh, but it's delicious. She was a little drunk. Tom on last toast—to love. She leaned against him, then bent her head back and drained the glass. Tom did not drink. You are going to be an angel about—about things, aren't you, Tom darling? You'll see. Oh, I am so happy. I want you close to me. They moved towards the bedroom. Cecilia went inside, while Tom

CONSUMPTION HAS BEEN CURED.

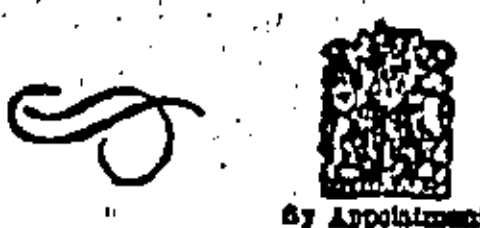

A REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION HAS BEEN FOUND.

DR. F. J. YONKERS, DISCOVERER OF THE NEW REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION.

Marvellous as it may seem after centuries of failure, a remedy has been discovered that has cured the deadly Consumption even in the advanced stages of the disease. No one will longer doubt that Consumption can be cured after reading the proof of hundreds of cases cured by this wonderful discovery—some after change of climate and all other remedies tried had failed, and the cases had been pronounced hopeless of cure. This new remedy has also proved itself effective and speedy in curing Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and other serious throat and lung troubles. In order that all in need of this wonderful product of Science may learn of its efficacy for themselves, a Company has been formed to distribute it to the World, and full particulars can be obtained by writing the DR. F. J. YONKERS CO., LTD. (Dept. C. 351), 118/120, Fleet St., London, E.C.4, and mentioning this paper.

ABSOLUTELY FREE. Do not wait if you have any of the symptoms of Consumption. If you have Chronic Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma or any Throat or Lung Trouble, write today and benefit yourself before it is too late.

From July 17th to 22nd, there will be assembled in London at Olympia . . . the greatest Exhibition Hall in the world . . . the most modern Advertising and Marketing knowledge and material ever collected beneath one roof . . .

You will learn how scientifically applied advertising in the Home country is revolutionising production and sales quotas. Inevitably you will 'pick up' much to adopt and adapt to your own specific 'local' purposes.

You will have something of supreme value and interest to offer the Home Manufacturer and Advertising Agent in the Empire Section of the Exhibition: your account of conditions overseas, of the trade crosscurrents that affect your marketing schemes, and the methods you employ to overcome vital sales problems.

At the Great Convention based on "Advertising and World Recovery," men of practical experience and seasoned outlook will debate on matters of major interest concerning selling and publicity . . . every phase of which will be dealt with fully and authoritatively.

Come with your experience. It is the primary purpose of the Exhibition that by personal contact and by mutual exchange of opinions with Principals we may both teach . . . and learn.

"SHELL" TRANSPORT AND TRADING

THE COMPANY'S FINANCIAL STRENGTH

POSITION OF THE OIL INDUSTRY REVIEWED

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, June 20.
The Annual General Meeting of the "Shell" Transport and Trading Company, Limited, was held yesterday at Southern House, London, E.C.

The Right Hon. Viscount Bearsted, M.C. (the chairman and one of the managing directors), who presided said:—

As regards the profit and loss account, the profits of the company, you will no doubt have noted, are slightly increased, the dividends and interest from sundry companies and other credits, less debits, being more by roughly £25,000. This enables us to increase our carry-forward, after provision for the dividend, by a figure of approximately £22,300, thus bringing it up to the sum of £250,445.

The Assets.
The property, holdings in and advances to sundry companies is reduced by approximately £5,690,000, this being mainly due to the repayment by one of our allied companies of a cash advance made to them, and it will be noticed that chiefly in consequence of this repayment the investments in British Government securities have increased by a similar amount.

You will see that we have reduced our foreign government railway and municipal stock holding from £204,113 in 1931 to £32,908 in 1932. You will also note that our cash at bankers on current and other accounts and at short notice has slightly increased from £214,574 to £211,770.

There are no further remarks to be made on the assets side of the accounts except that the directors are quite satisfied that all properties stand at a figure well below their present-day value.

Turning to the liabilities side of the balance-sheet, the figures remain much as last year. Being, as always, our own bankers, the superfluous capital temporarily unemployed become liquid and is for the present invested in short-term Government securities.

To give you a wider picture of how much capital we have thus awaiting a turn of the trade tide, I may tell you that the Shell-Royal Dutch group as a whole have no less than £35,000,000 in liquid resources, while the affiliated companies have a further £16,000,000 available. In addition we have our oil stocks, amounting in all to several millions of tons, entirely uncharged. While this idle capital is at present comparatively unremunerative, it is at any rate an earnest that, come what may, your company and its colleagues are financially equipped to weather any storm.

Handicap of Taxation.
This currency question we share with all other traders, but we bear more than our fair share of taxation. On the trade of our group for 1932 the direct taxation, exclusive of income-tax on profits, was about £50,000,000. Against this the shareholders received in dividends about £6,000,000, on most of which they have to pay income-tax. These figures speak for themselves.

An excuse which is often advanced for the penal taxation of oil products in this country is that all imported petroleum and its products is foreign oil, and that its purchase involves the sending of vast sums of money abroad, thereby prejudicing British trade and increasing this country's unfavourable trade balance.

Position of Petrol.
In the first place, let us take petrol. The retail price to-day is 1s. 5d. per gallon. This price falls naturally into three parts: tax, c.i.f. cost and distributing expenses. Of the 1s. 5d., 8d. is tax, which is obviously all spent in this country and has no effect on the trade balance. Of the remaining 9d. only 2½d. represents c.i.f. cost, and the balance of 6½d. covers landing and storage charges and losses, inland freight, delivery charges and losses, and selling costs.

Of the balance of 2½d., or 18 per cent., by no means all is money sent abroad to the prejudice of the exchanges. In the first place, a large part of the oil imported into this country is carried in British ships built, manned, and largely supplied with stores, etc., purchased here. In the third place, much of the crude oil is produced by British companies, such as V.O.C., Anglo-Egyptian Oilfields, and Anglo-Persian.

What is true of petrol is true in a different degree of other imported oil products, such as paraffin, fuel oil, Diesel oil, and lubricating oil. In every case the c.i.f. cost is only a fraction of the cost of the product when delivered to the consumer, and, as in the case of petrol, the whole of the c.i.f. cost does not by any means represent money sent abroad.

Question of Protection.
A further defence of excessive taxation is that to a large extent this taxation is protective, and tends to benefit fuel produced at home by raising the price of the imported article. This again is almost a complete fallacy. In Great Britain to-day the only alternative to petrol is benzol, which is a by-product from the distillation of coal, the demand for which far exceeds the supply, and on which in any case no tax is paid.

You will see from the report that the world's production of petroleum fell by about 10,000,000 tons during 1932, while our own group's production increased by about 400,000 tons. In previous years we took the lead in restriction and carried our own share rather beyond what was fair in our endeavour to give a lead. The present slight increase still leaves our share of curtailment well above the average taken over the last three years.

Unsatisfactory General Position.
This brings me to the general position, which I can only describe as profoundly unsatisfactory. Conference after conference has been held, and decision after decision has been taken, only to be nullified by short-sighted and selfish interests. In your report you will see the word "illegal" used of production in certain areas of the United States. This is literally true, and only serves to show the difficulty of enforcing laws designed to benefit the whole industry when petty local interests are determined to ignore them. It would appear that the oil industry as a whole in the United States is incapable or unwilling to exercise self-control, and one can only hope that such legislation designed for the purpose as may be passed will be enforceable and effective. (Hear, hear.)

At any rate, until the United States oil industry is in a position to be really stabilized, either voluntarily or enforcedly, I see no prospect of stabilization of the industry as a whole, nor is it fair to expect it.

Last year I referred to Roumania as a country where the advantages of conservation were not properly appreciated. I am glad to say that during the past year we have had a great deal of help and understanding from the heads of the Roumanian industry, who are now willing to take their fair share of any collective effort.

A falling production, in spite of accelerated drilling, and an increasing internal consumption rendered Roumania an ever-decreasing competitive factor, except in so far as she figures as a purchaser of American oil in order to implement dwindling supplies.

As in so many other matters, it is in America that the real difficulty and the real solution are to be found, and in the end I hope that the instinct of self-preservation will give results even if industrial statesmanship fails.

Benefits of Joint Selling.
A year ago I referred to the benefits which had then already been obtained by the association in the British Isles of the two great British oil-producing groups—namely, ourselves and our friends the Anglo-Persian-Oil Company, Limited—in the formation of a joint selling organization—Shell-Mex and B.P. Limited—and I am pleased to say that the last 12 months' experience of this association has proved that further substantial advantages, both

THE EXCHANGE MARKET

MESSRS. ROZA BROS. REPORT

Messrs. Roza Bros. have forwarded us the following exchange market report for Saturday:—
Silver prices rose 1/16 yesterday for both deliveries, the quotations being 18 1/16 for Ready and 18 1/16 for Forward. Silver advances reported speculators as having operated both ways. The tone was uncertain. In America the rate was slightly lower at 40½ for Spot. The market was erratic.

New York advices reported the opening rate at 4.78 and the closing rate at 4.78. The highest rate was 4.78 and the lowest 4.77.

Market.
Opened with indications of easiness but subsequently reacted in sympathy with Shanghai.

Starling.
The market opened with sellers at 1/5 5/16, buyers bidding 1/5 1/16 but business was soon done at 1/5 11/16 for near delivery followed by transactions at 1/5 5/16 September and 1/5 5/16 for near. The market then reacted and business was again arranged at 1/5 11/16 for near and August 1/5 1/16 was also done for August. Towards the close offers at 1/5 1/16 were accepted for near delivery. The market closed with sellers at 1/5 11/16, 1/5 1/16 August and 1/5 11/16 September, buyers at 1/10 higher respectively.

Gold Dollars.
Quiet. The market started with sellers at 24 7/16, buyers bidding 24 9/16 but sellers came out later and the rate gradually rose to 24 11/16 sellers with business done at 24 3/4. Towards the close 24 7/8 could have been obtained for near with business done at 24 15/16 for cash. The market closed with sellers at 24 7/8, 24 9/16 and 24 11/16, buyers at 1/16 higher respectively.

Merchants were quoted at 114½ for near delivery.

Shanghai Dollars.
Shanghai Dollars were quoted at 111 1/16 for near delivery.

Early advices indicated buyers at 1/3 9/16 but towards the close sellers were indicated at 1/3 9/16, buyers bidding 1/3 1/16 for near.

to yourselves and to our customers in the shape of quality and service, have been obtainable and are in fact now being secured. (Hear, hear.)
An enormous task has been presented by the fusion of these two great distributing organizations into one still greater concern, but it is justifying the labour spent upon it to an increasing degree. I would add that the staffs of both companies have collaborated most loyally in every way.

I have referred in previous years to the size and financial strength of our provision fund, which has amply justified its initiation. The fund still holds investments of nearly £20,000,000 sterling in securities entirely unconnected with any companies in which we are interested. (Hear, hear.)

Asia Lands, Limited, has received the following report from their New York correspondents, E. A. Pierce & Co. The market does not develop real weakness in any direction. We think there will be renewed interest in rails next week. Wheat: There was heavy speculative buying, influenced by bullish Canadian crop reports. The Trade is very hopeful of a definite limitation agreement being reached. Cotton: Heavy demand. Influenced by the success of the acreage curtailment plan, new high levels were established early in the day. There was an easier tone later. Reports of rain over the Western areas and process Tax were construed as bearish. Some quarters, however, do not believe it will prove so over a period of time. Silver: A firm tone throughout the session. There was short covering, new investment buying and liquidation. Trade offers were well absorbed.

Business Done: 2,240,000 shares.

The owner of a small theatre was unable to pay his debts and the bailiffs paid a visit during which some of the stage scenery and lighting effects were removed.

Next week the official raiding party paid another call and took away the rear seats in the auditorium.

The proprietor, however, turned even this sorry state of affairs to account, for he advertised boldly: "Great business! Standing room only in the pit!"

Student: "I hear Brown got 95 in anatomy."
Professor: Yes, he's out stargazer."
